Sea Festival riot rocks Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — A weekend riot which sent three policeman to hospital has put the future of Vancouver's Sea Festival in jeopardy.

Shocked festival officials and city politicians say they will be keeping close watch on the celebrations through next weekend to determine if the festival will be staged at all next year.

For the moment, the annual event is being allowed to continue, but police will be stepping up patrols and and enforcing a 10 p.m. curfew to prevent any further problems.

Three police officers were taken to hospital for minor injuries they received while trying to control a crowd of 2,000 to 3,000 celebrants who gathered around English Bay.

Two patrol cars and two ambulances had windshields smashed by rocks or bottles when the revellers clashed with policemen.

The riot started when rowdies set fire to large garbage containers and then tried to stop firefighters from dowsing the blazes. When a firehose was turned on the partying crowd, the mood turned ugly and the firefighters faced a barrage of rocks and bottles.

Festival chairman Graham Clark said he will resign if there is a repeat of the riot at English Bay in which nine police officers were injured.

Clark said he is opposed to cancelling or curtailing the remainder of the 10-day festival, which features a bathtub race across Georgia Strait, an air show, beauty pageant and sea-related events.

He said he does not see why the city should "cave in to the likes of the ruffians and hoodlums who come out from under the rocks once a year."

Mayor Jack Volrich, also chairman of the city's police board, said he is satisfied the police acted properly and that their conduct did not aggravate the rioters.

Volrich said next year's festival format will be reviewed and changes may be made.

If there is any recurrence, however, the city would "have to take serious measures immediately."

More policemen will be called and the beaches will be cleared at 10 p.m. PDT as required by a city bylaw, Vancouver police chief Don Winterton told a news conference Sunday afternoon. And if necessary, he said, police will be equipped with riot gear to clear the crowds.

In addition to the three policemen admitted to hospital, six other policemen and a fire captain were injured, three police cars and two ambulances were damaged, and businesses were damaged.

Winterton said a small group of 300 persons brought their own liquor and got drunk but were concealed in a larger group of 2,000 to 3,000 decent citizens.

Liquor was confiscated and charges were laid. He did not have details of the charges.

Plunge at falls kills swimmer

A 21-year-old Coquitlam man was swept to his death over the middle cataract of Little Qualicum Falls Saturday afternoon as his wife watched helplessly from shore.

Parksville RCMP said the body of Roderick Michael Kreitewolf, 65 Whiting Way, Coquitlam, was recovered below the rain-swollen falls by federal fisheries officers and Parksville Search and Rescue.

Kreitewolf was swimming in a pool upstream near Middle Bridge when he was caught by the current and swept over the vertical drop to his death.

The victim's wife, Rose, was on shore.

Helicopter begins run to nearby lake

Moments after lift, melted wreckage lies smoking in field

Helicopter airlift really falls flat

Efforts to have a helicopter lift a downed Airwest turbine-powered Beaver float plane from a Duncan hay field backfired on the weekend when the plane dropped in mid-air, crashed and burned.

A witness told the Times the Okanagan Helicopters' machine had the plane, worth close to $300,000, up between 90 and 120 metres Saturday evening when something let go.

The plane landed safely on the field Wednesday night after developing problems on a flight from Victoria to Duncan.

The six occupants were safe and Airwest said the plane suffered no damage.

But witness David Strand of Duncan said the Beaver was a total wreck after Saturday's aborted lift attempt.

He said he was visiting his parents near the field when the lift began and he decided to watch and take pictures.

He said once the cable and all the rigging was ready, the helicopter lifted the plane and took it quite high in the air and then turned, apparently heading for Quamichan Lake.

"Then all of a sudden the plane let go and the helicopter jumped up in the air."

He said he couldn't see exactly where the plane landed because it went behind some trees.

By the time he got there, five minutes later, the fire had already melted the aluminum. He said only the tips of the wings were not burned. The motor was driven deep into the swampy ground.

Strand thought a connection at the helicopter must have let go because he said all of the cable was with the downed plane.

However, Ken Blackwood, operations manager for Okanagan Helicopters, said today rigging at the bottom end — around the plane — appeared to let go.

There has been no official statement on the cause of the accident yet, he added, noting that the insurance adjusters will study the mishap.

Blackwood said accidents of this kind do not merit a Transport Canada investigation.

Ted Thornton of Vancouver, Airwest's manager of station services, said he wasn't sure what caused the accident.

Airwest will salvage whatever it can of the burned-out plane, he said.

Times News Services

From Texas to Georgia and as far north as Indiana, millions of Americans have been subjected to weeks of 40°C and above temperatures that are blamed in the deaths of more than 500 people.

The morgue at Kansas City, Mo., is full to capacity and county officials are urging victims' relatives to claim bodies quickly.

Damage to crops and livestock in Texas has already exceeded $1 billion, and state agriculture official Rick Henderson said the drought coupled with depressed farm prices will force about 3,000 of the state's farmers out of business this year.

"We've been losing farmers steadily for the past few years, but this latest drought will spell the end for many, many of our state's farmers," Henderson said.

At Millett in south Texas, Dick Reinhardt said he has had only one good crop yield this year.

"I bought this place to get away from the high cost of irrigating in the Panhandle," he said. "If it doesn't rain by Aug. 15, I'm in real trouble."

The greatest toll from the heat wave has been in lives lost with 505 deaths in which heat was blamed or considered a contributing factor. Missouri had the highest toll with 120 deaths. There were 105 in Arkansas, 90 in Texas, 32 each in Mississippi and Tennessee, 31 in Oklahoma, 26 in Georgia, 23 in Kansas, 18 in Illinois, 17 in Alabama, six in Louisiana, three in Indiana and one each in Colorado and Nebraska.

Missouri Gov. Joseph Teasdale declared a state of emergency and placed the National Guard on alert today as the number of heat-related deaths in the state soared over 40.

"Missourians are suffering and dying," the governor said in signing an executive order placing guard units in St. Louis, Kansas City, Springfield and Jefferson City on alert to provide emergency transportation.

Sunday's high in St. Louis was 36 and that was cool compared with some other spots. It was 42 in Memphis, the hottest day in the city since records were started in 1875. In Batesville, Ark., it was 44.

"We're just going to have to sweat it out," said Rip Howard, a forecaster for National Weather Service in Memphis.

In Arkansas, the state pollution control and ecology department reported that the air in Little Rock was unhealthy for three hours each afternoon because of a high content of ozone.

Ozone is produced from a reaction between sunlight and air pollution, the department said. A high ozone content in the air can cause respiratory problems and hurt plants, the department said.

GOP convention opens

DETROIT (CP) — Bugles and flags, high hopes and a country-style rendition of the Star-Spangled Banner launched the 1980 Republican party convention today, a congress the party hopes will put Ronald Reagan in the White House.

As Reagan headed to this border city from his California ranch to accept the nomination for the presidency, the 1,994 official delegates, an equal number of alternate delegates and as many of the thousands of observers and journalists who could breach security around the convention got the four-day political pep rally rolling.

However, behind the hoopla there was evidence of some cracks in the partisan solidarity demonstrated in the convention hall for the national television networks. See page 21.

Energy tax still alive - Lalonde

The federal government still is considering a possible export tax on energy despite a strong condemnation of such a move by the Alberta and B.C. governments, Energy Minister Marc Lalonde said today.

Lalonde, here to meet with B.C. counterpart Bob McClelland, acknowledged the western opposition to such a tax, but refused to say what action he will recommend.

Premier Bill Bennett of B.C. said after the B.C.-Alberta meeting Friday such a tax would have nothing to do with a federal energy policy, but would represent only a "money grab" by Ottawa to help it relieve the massive public debt.

Lalonde questioned that statement, saying a tax of any kind is a money collection.

"Our purpose is to try and raise the necessary revenues for the national government to fill its national responsibility, particularly in the energy field," he said. "The purpose is not to raise revenues for the general operation of government.

"This is not the main target, the main purpose of our review of energy policy. It's to try to develop an energy program which will be properly financed and which will allow the government of Canada to do its share in the area of energy policy."

'Nothing doing' at Mount Hood

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Mount St. Helens quivered but Mount Hood was quiet as scientists in Washington and Oregon monitored the two volcanos for any hints of an impending eruption.

Both mountains, about 110 kilometres apart on opposite sides of the Columbia River, are wired for sound. Additional instruments were placed around Oregon's Mount Hood following a series of earthquakes last week. Washington's Mount St. Helens showed similar seismic activity before it began belching steam and ash March 27.

At Mount Hood, the word Sunday was "nothing, nothing at all," said Norma Koski of the U.S. Forest Service.

Twelve earthquakes were recorded early Saturday on Mount Hood, but scientists remained uncertain whether the 3,425-metre peak would erupt, said Tim Hait, U.S. Geological Survey geologist.

Hait said the 90 quakes recorded on Mount Hood since July 6 were fewer than recorded at Mount St. Helens the week before March 27.

At Mount St. Helens, one tiny quake was recorded Saturday and another early Sunday, Koski said. Scientists say such quivers may indicate avalanches or steam explosions.

A volcano hazard watch has been issued for Mount Hood, 70 km east of Portland, Ore Steam has drifted from the mountain infrequently since the last confirmed eruption in 1865.

Sheriff Bob Lynch said 1,500 residents within a 25-km radius of the mountain would be warned by sirens to evacuate to the community of Hood River. However, officials said an eruption might cause flooding on Hood River and wash out several bridges, blocking the only escape from the city.

Forty-five die in El Salvador violence

SAN SALVADOR (Reuter) — Police said Sunday at least 45 people were killed in politically-motivated violence in the last 24 hours in El Salvador, where peasants continue to hold the Costa Rican Embassy.

Police said the bullet-riddled bodies of 31 people were found in the country's second city, Santa Ana, 640 kilometres west of San Salvador.

B.C., Alta. eye west rail control

The Canadian Press

The B.C. and Alberta governments may bid to take control of all railway lines operated from Winnipeg west by Canadian National Railways and CP Rail, says B.C. Transport Minister Alex Fraser.

The proposal was apparently one of several considered Friday at a private meeting of cabinet ministers from the two provincial governments.

No details were released on how the two governments would go about taking control of the railways. CP Rail is privately owned and the CNR is owned by the federal government.

The ministers also discussed joint development of railways to northeastern B.C. coal fields. Such a link, if extended into Alberta, would encourage coal exploration in that province.

A communique released after the meeting said Fraser and Horst Schmid, Alberta's economic development minister, will be co-chairmen of an interprovincial cabinet committee charged with preparing a rail and port master plan.

"The ports are the main concern," Fraser said. "It is hard to say what the federal government's attitude is.

"Really, the port facilities are a mess and both ourselves and Alberta are worried that foreign countries will go elsewhere because we are looked at as unreliable suppliers of wheat, coal and other goods.

Meanwhile, the premiers of Alberta and B.C. said today they will be in no mood to co-operate at the September constitutional conference if Ottawa goes ahead with a tax on natural gas exports.

In an interview on CTV's Canada-AM show, Peter Lougheed of Alberta said the export tax would be discriminatory and "render this Confederation in a very shaky way."

B.C.'s Bill Bennett said the tax would be a "money grab by the federal government" and would make Western Canadians question the value of Confederation.

Forced sterilization eyed

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — A staunch supporter of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi plans to introduce a bill in Parliament providing for compulsory sterilization of Indians with more than two children.

Kushwant Singh, editor of the Hindustan Times newspaper, who was nominated to the Rajya Sabha (upper house) after Mrs. Gandhi was returned to power last January, said that under the private member's bill, couples with more than three children would lose ther voting rights.

Singh told doctors Sunday that reports criticizing the compulsory sterilization program during Mrs. Gandhi's 1975-77 controversial emergency rule have been exaggerated. He said mistakes were no doubt committed, and "We have got to learn from them."

During the emergency, Indian states were given sterilization targets, and the total number of operations rose to eight million in one year before Mrs. Gandhi was voted out of office in March, 1977. The number of sterilizations dropped to 800,000 the following year, but has increased since.

India's population was estimated by the government at 659 million last March — an increase of more than 100 million in less than 10 years.

Kanata a major winner

HONOLULU (AP) — Kanata, a 41-foot West Vancouver sloop, was declared the unofficial fleet corrected time winner Sunday in 2,300-nautical mile Victoria-Maui International Yacht Race.

Unofficial standings were released Sunday after 25 of 36 boats had finished.

Kanata, skippered by Vladimir Plasvic, was followed by Zuben'Ubi IV, of Lahaina and Corinthian-Seattle Yacht Clubs and the Balboa Yacht Club's Tomahawk.

The first across the finish line, the 61-foot sloop Triumph out of San Diego, won the elapsed time trophy.

Unofficial Division I honors went to Race Passage of Bremerton, Chiron of Tacoma, and Indomitable of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club.

Kanata took the Division II winner's trophy, followed by Tomahawk and Brother Goose of the Everett Yacht Club.

The Division III winner's trophy unofficially went to Zuben'Ubi IV. Virginia Dare of Seattle took second in the division, while Topkapi of the West Vancouver Yacht Club was waiting to see if Royal Vancouver's Kelea, which was still at sea Sunday evening, would capture third place.

The Turtle Trophy, which is awarded to the last boat to finish the race, was expected to go to Rampart of the Comox Yacht Club, predicted to finish Wednesday.

Counterfeit ring broken in Britain

LONDON (AP) — Detectives seized counterfeit U.S. banknotes and printing plates and arrested 14 people, including six women, in weekend raids, Scotland Yard said today.

"We have prevented a potential international fraud on a massive scale," Det. Insp. Peter Gwynne told reporters.

He said one raid on a north London garage turned up 250,000 forged U.S. dollar notes in 100, 50, 20 and 10-dollar denominations, 500 blank bankers drafts with a potential nominal value of $1.1 million and 50 forged British visitor passports.

None of those arrested was immediately named. Their cases are to be heard in court starting Tuesday, police said.

Police said their inquiry began April 1 after reports of forged bank drafts offered to jewelers, furriers and electrical suppliers. The drafts were drawn on British banks and finance houses.

Cuban ships attacked off northwest Africa

HAVANA (Reuter) — Cuba's government-controlled press condemned today an attack by unidentified aircraft on two Cuban ships off northwest Africa on Saturday that killed the captain of one vessel and wounded three officers.

The official Prensa Latina news agency said the ships were attacked 50 kilometres off the coast of the Moroccan-administered Western Sahara after leaving Las Palmas Harbor in Spain's Canary Islands. It said the ships were fuel tankers in the area to supply the Cuban tuna-fishing fleet, which operates in the mid-Atlantic.

There was nothing in the report to link the incident with Cuba's support for Polisario Front guerrillas fighting Moroccan forces to set up an independent state in the Western Sahara, formerly a Spanish colony but now controlled by Morocco.

Morocco broke off diplomatic relations with Cuba on April 23, after Havana recognized the Sahara Arab Republic proclaimed by the Algerian-backed Polisario Front.

Today the press and radio condemned the incident as a criminal, vile and cowardly attack on unarmed ships, and a meeting of more than 500 members of the Communist party in Havana observed a minute's silence in memory of the captain.

The victims of the attack were the captain of the Moroboro, Manuel Ventura, who was killed, and its chief engineer, Narciso Scull and First Officer Jesus Medina, who were both seriously injured, and the first officer of the Guillermo Pico, Jesus Quintero, who was slightly wounded.

Polisario guerrillas have seized the crews of Spanish and Portuguese ships at least four times in recent years.

The latest incident was last May, when guerrillas said they destroyed a Spanish trawler and captured its crew.

In a statement issued in Algiers, the front said then that it had warned foreign fishing fleets not to "loot the Western Saharan Republic's resources in fish."

No fat here say three Crown firms

VANCOUVER (CP) — There isn't any fat to trim off the employment rolls of at least three provincial Crown corporations, officials say.

They were reacting to last week's announcement by Finance Minister Hugh Curtis that the government believes it can save $80 million with a province-wide freeze on civil service hiring.

Charles Gallagher, B.C. Ferries general manager, said the bulk of the corporation's 2,600 jobs are mandated by Coast Guard regulations governing operation of ferries.

Since 1977, the number of jobs has increased from 2,300 because successive contracts with the Maritime Employees Union have reduced the work day to seven hours from eight, requiring additional part-time workers.

Antlered beasts $1M road problem

By Vic Parsons

FRASER LAKE (CP) — In some parts of British Columbia, moose, deer and elk wage a year-round open season on drivers.

Collisions with large animals meandering across the highway have only recently come under the scrutiny of wildlife officials and the figures are surprising. A preliminary — and conservative — estimate is that more than $1 million a year is spent in B.C. hammering moose-shaped indentations out of car and truck fenders.

Consider the example of a local driver who hit a moose last month and veered off the highway. The toll was $2,000 damage to the vehicle, one shaken driver and one moose fatality.

In 1979, he says, the provincially-run auto insurance company reported 1,788 accidents involving wildlife with damage claims above $200.

With no precise claims figures available, Dryden believes the average damage done to vehicles will probably be between $600 and $800 in each encounter. Wildlife staff have picked 200 of last year's accidents from the insurance company's records and will feed them through a computer to try and get a better estimate of the true cost.

Meanwhile, the highways ministry says between April, 1979, and March, 1980, employees collected the corpses of 689 deer, 40 moose and 72 elk from the roadways after they had been hit by vehicles.

That tally is well below the number of reported animal-vehicle collisions. Dryden says the discrepancy between the number of accident reports and animal bodies recovered might be explained by a California study which showed for every animal found dead on the highway after a collision, two more crawled off into the woods to expire.

The wildlife branch study indicates the worst time for accidents is early evening on unlit highways and the highest frequency is during the tourist months of July or August, or October when the antlered beasts have their mating season and tend to move about a lot in search of partners.

There were no human deaths in animal-vehicle collisions in 1979, but "quite a few" injuries. The study has not yet gone into the seriousness of those injuries.

Dryden says that while the kill cannot be completely eliminated, the wildlife branch is going to try a reflector device developed in Austria which has reduced highway kills there by 80 per cent. The reflectors now are being tested in Alberta, but no results are available.

The reflectors would be set up on posts along the highway. The reflection of an approching vehicle's headlights sets up what seems to be a continuous barrier of red light which keeps animals from crossing the road.

After the vehicle has passed, the light barrier dissolves and animals can cross in safety.

Solar scoffing turns to cheers

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A few years ago, residents scoffed at a man's idea to solar-heat an elementary school, labelling it Mercer's Folly.

But they weren't laughing a few weeks ago when Pinecrest Elementary began using its system of solar panels and monitoring equipment, which is reducing energy consumption by about 50 per cent.

Bill Mercer, a former school district trustee was the driving force behind the scheme, proposed in 1977. Mercer, now a Toronto resident, was not there to see provincial and federal officials and a few members of the public commemorate the event.

The school actually has been operating since September, 1979, with the solar heating equipment. The monitoring equipment, which improves the system's efficiency, was installed only recently.

Lawyers jump on ad bandwagon

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia lawyers are jumping on the advertising bandwagon, sparked by the lifting of a ban imposed by the Law Society of B.C.

Scattered throughout the usual name, address and telephone listing for lawyers in the British Columbia Telephone Co.'s yellow pages are promotion ads now permitted as a result of a B.C. Supreme Court decision last year forcing the law society to lift its total ban on advertising.

However, advertising still is tightly controlled. No radio or television commercials are allowed — only print advertising.

Most of the ads are for small firms, and two in Vancouver predictably are included — Jack James' Law Shoppe and Don Jabour's Neighborhood Legal Sevices.

Both firms have been fighting the law society inside and out of court for the right to advertise, claiming restriction of trade.

But other firms which now advertise include some of the largest and most "establishment" firms in the province such as Davis and Company in Vancouver which has 52 lawyers on staff including former justice minister Ron Basford.

"I was very surprised to see Davis and Company in the yellow pages," said law society treasurer Victor McCallum.

"I'm actually amazed."

William Wright, chairman of the firm's management committee, said he company believes the ads will simplify the choice of a lawyer.

When people are confronted with the traditional listings, they have no way of knowing what areas a lawyer specializes in, he said.

"It's always been my belief as a practioner that at least a certain sector of the population does not have access to the profession," said Wright.

The ads, he said, could reduce criticism that the legal profession is "shrouded in mystery."

In Victoria, Harold Turnham of Owen-Flood, Cox, Turnham, Green and Higginbotham, said his firm placed an ad in the local yellow pages because the partners believed everyone else was going to do so.

"We did it basically as a defensive measure. We already had as much business as we could handle."

He said the firm was surprised more Victoria lawyers didn't advertise.

However, C. G. Randall of Randall, Meyer, Pollard and Fuller noted the law society authorized the use of yellow-page ads at the 11th-hour and Victoria firms had only a few days' notice to meet the telephone company deadline.

Randall said his firm's small one-column notice has attracted some new business.

Jarbour and James, whose disputes led to the end of the advertising ban, say they aren't surprised to see fellow lawyers jump on the advertising bandwagon.

"I'm not sure the body of lawyers are opposed to advertising, although the governing body is, said James.

"Lawyers are entrepreneurs, they just don't like people to think they are," said Jabour.

Contraption seized

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fisherman Paul Bower finally found someone who wanted the torpedo-like sonar device with possible Soviet markings he recently salvaged off the remote west coast of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

In fact, the receiver of wrecks, an official with authority under the Canada Shipping Act, was so interested he has forced Bower to hand over the contraption.

Bower and Dwight Welwood, the boat's mate, found no takers when they offered to sell the 270-kilogram device for $7,000 to the Canadian Forces, the U.S. or a museum.

The military first offered $700, then $4,000, but Bower refused. Shortly after, the police and an army officer showed up.

"We had to turn it over to them," Bower said. "They were coming on heavy, threatening us with fines or jail."

At Prince Rupert, Hugh Ashworth, acting receiver of wrecks for the north coast of B.C., said it will be kept until someone proves ownership. If no owner shows up within a year, it will be sold at a public auction.

He said the proceeds would go to the federal government, not to Bower. "Mr. Bower is entitled to claim reasonable salvage expenses."

2M contract for research to Forintek

VANCOUVER (CP) — A $2.3-million contract for forest product research by a Vancouver firm was signed Friday by federal Supply and Services Minister Jean-Jacques Blais.

The contract with Forest Industry Technology (Forintek) will cover 50 projects over five years.

Forintek became a private company in 1978 after more than 60 years as a federal government research laboratory.

Blais said the research is to increase the supply and efficient use of timber.

U.S. Army relives Alcan Hwy. days

DAWSON CREEK (CP) — The United States Army returned to this northeastern B.C. community this weekend after a 36-year absence.

Most of the 14 ex-soldiers who attended the reunion of Headquarters Company APO 724 — the company which built and maintained the Alaska Highway from Dawson Creek, through the Yukon Territory to Fairbanks, Alaska — had not seen the community since they left in the fall of 1944.

"It's an unbelievable improvement," said one ex-soldier from Denver, Colo. "When we arrived in '42 Dawson Creek was a muddy little town with a population of 500. Today it's got 13,000 people and looks great."

The 2,500-kilometre highway was built to give the U.S. Army easy access to Alaska in the event of a Japanese attack. Work on the project began in March, 1943, and the rugged terrain and northern climate posed special problems for the 80,000 American soldiers involved in the project.

Kelowna police attacked

KELOWNA (CP) — Kelowna RCMP, attempting to quell an early-morning party Sunday, were met with rocks, beer bottles and flying kitchen chairs.

Twenty-eight people were arrested including two juveniles.

Police said the occupant of a house in this Okanagan Valley community came home to find a party in progress, and called police when his efforts to clear out the people failed.

RCMP said the beer bottles and rocks began flying when police tried to approach the house and "when they tried the rear, they had kitchen chairs thrown at them."

Vancouver hotel torched

VANCOUVER (CP) — Arson is suspected in a fire which forced 350 persons from their rooms at the Century Plaza Travelodge hotel Sunday.

A pair of firemen were injured, one suffering smoke inhalation and the other from heat prostration. Both were treated in hospital and released. There were no other injuries reported.

The fire broke out in a room where furniture was being stored.

WAC bust unveiled

NANAIMO (CP) — A bronze bust of former B.C. premier W. A. C. Bennett was unveiled Sunday by his widow May Bennett in this eastern Vancouver Island city.

The bust, sculpted by Petar Bulic of Vancouver, is to be permanently placed in front of the Croatian Miners' Hall. A plaque under the bust describes the late Bennett, father of the present B.C. Premier Bill Bennett, as "the master builder of British Columbia."

Victim identified

RICHMOND (CP) — Police have identified Wayne Kurmey, 34, of Vancouver as the man missing and presumed to have drowned in the Fraser River near Annacis Island. A spokesman said Kurmey and two other men fell into the river from a power boat, but the other men managed to scramble to safety.

WHO DO YOU THINK SHOULD PAY THE LEAST FOR AUTOPLAN INSURANCE?

Maybe the young guy because he doesn't have much money? Or the older man because he just might be a more responsible driver? How about the woman? She may drive less and more cautiously. The logger? He certainly doesn't have to fight city rush-hour traffic.

The answer: none of the above, necessarily.

Drivers who should pay the least possible amount for their Autoplan insurance are those who don't cause accidents. It doesn't make any difference – and it shouldn't make any difference – whether they are male or female, young or old, married or single, or where they live in the province.

That's the whole idea behind the F.A.I.R. program – Fundamental Auto Insurance Rating. When F.A.I.R. is fully in place, everyone will be entitled, as their right, to the same base Autoplan premium, depending upon the use of their vehicle. Only drivers who are responsible for an accident will be charged an additional premium of $300 spread over three years. And the more accidents they cause, the more they'll pay.

It's simple. It's logical. It's F.A.I.R.

Indefinitely is a long time

For four years the federal government has ignored a recommendation of its Law Reform Commission that calls for abolition of lieutenant-governor's warrants.

The warrant is a legal device used by judges to incarcerate people found unfit to stand trial because of insanity, or not guilty because of insanity. It allows the provincial government to hold the person indefinitely.

In the time since the commission's recommendations were made, the plight of a 34-year-old Fredericton, N.B. man has been used to highlight the inadequacies of this law. Nonetheless Emerson Bonnar remains locked up in a maximum security ward for the criminally insane. His case, and the hundreds of others across Canada, should prod the federal and provincial attorneys-general into dusting off the commission's recommendations.

Bonnar has spent the past 15 years in prison because, at the age of 19, he apparently tried to steal a woman's purse. He had no previous convictions. Before the incident he was receiving voluntary psychiatric care at a Saint John hospital.

A doctor at the hospital testified that Bonnar was somewhat retarded, suffering from a delusion as a result of insanity. He added that Bonnar had not troubled anyone before.

It was the doctor's testimony that was used by the magistrate to order Bonnar held at the pleasure of the lieutenant-governor (meaning the cabinet) because he was unfit to stand trial.

Bonnar was not represented by a lawyer at the hearing. He has been locked up for 15 years for an offence that would have netted a sane person a few months in jail at most.

The only way Bonnar, or any person held under a lieutenant-governor's warrant, can be released is if a review board of doctors and lawyers appointed by the province finds that he has recovered.

But Bonnar was, and is, committed to an institution for the criminally insane and nobody knows if he was guilty of purse snatching.

The Law Reform Commission recommended that mentally ill people be returned to the regular legal system to stand trial with lawyers to protect their interests. If found not guilty, they would be set free. If guilty, then the individual's mental state would be considered in determining the appropriate penalty.

The commission said, however, that at no time should the penalty be more than what is usually levied for the crime. What could be fairer?

In B.C. there are about 140 warrant cases. A judge and two psychiatrists make up the province's review board. They examine each patient's case every nine months.

Although warrant patients are not locked up and forgotten, they are still outside the normal legal process. They don't get a courtroom style hearing before the review board. Their lawyers have no access to their medical files. The patients have no right of cross-examination in review hearings. They don't have the right to refuse medication.

Society has an interest in protecting itself from the insane as it does from any criminal. But it should also have an interest in doing so without removing the rights of people like Bonnar who have not proved themselves to be a danger to anyone.

Watch closely

Waiting for the tide is worse than waiting for the kettle to boil. (A watched tide never floods.) But in the Beaufort Sea a short distance off Alaska's north shore, state and federal authorities have decided there may be more than virtue in patience.

Dinkum Sands, the name given to the gravel pile in question, is in the center of a large oil field and in the middle of a multimillion dollar dispute between the U.S. government and the State of Alaska.

Both are claiming ownership of the fields. The outcome of the dispute hangs on whether Dinkum Sands is an island or a shoal. If it's an island, the royalties flow to Alaska instead of Washington.

You might have thought that eyeballing or even pitching a tent and waiting to see if the sleeping bags got wet would have been enough. Nope.

A special year-long study, enlisting the aid of satellites, sophisticated hydrographic equipment and scientists, is underway to determine whether the smallest bit of Dinkum Sands remains dry on the flood tide.

A man for good government

OTTAWA — This is a column in praise of Joe Clark, and those for whom the shock is too much may turn their faces to the wall, or take the dog for a walk until the thing is done.

The leader of the official opposition has met a lot of opposition of his own lately, among press, pundits and party. He blew it. An inability to count to 137, or even to have on hand someone who could count to 137, led to the defeat of his 136-member government last December.

Fair enough. It was a monumental miscalculation, based on an unwarranted assumption that the Socreds or the NDP or the Liberals or maybe the U.S. cavalry would come through at the last minute and save the day.

However, on the base of that one miscalculation has been erected a ramshackle structure of invective, anger and misinformation, behind which the real Joe Clark is fast disappearing, and under which he is likely to be buried.

Ham or altruist

Politics is not an easy line of work. The guy who sticks his head through the hole at a coconut-shy has an easier time of it, and it is a matter of constant wonder why anyone would put up with the abuse that goes with the job. (The politicos' explanation is that they do it for the good of the country; a more likely possibility is that the profession appeals to the hams among us. Hams don't mind a little slicing.)

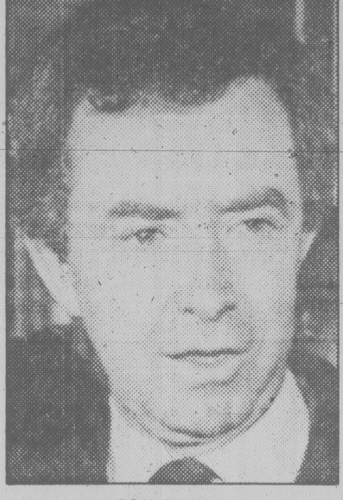
There is always a danger of tossing one coconut too many, driving out of public life people we need within it.

Robert Stanfield was such a man, and we did him in.

Clark is another, and we are about to do him in, too.

Before that happens, it might be well to record the qualities that make Clark an ornament to his craft. They are on public display every day in the House of Commons, where Clark is at his best.

For one thing, he is surprisingly tough. The notion of Clark as a wimp, a simp and a milksop will not withstand the observance of even one Question Period. He has the gall of a burglar and the persistence of an insurance salesman, when he's onto something. When Prime Minister Trudeau kept sliding over a statement on the Venice summit, Clark went around him like a coppersmith around a barrel, hammering at every hoop. Trudeau, who used to treat Clark with lofty disdain, now accords him a wary respect.



JOE CLARK
. . .shines in parliament

He is supportive, too, even on behalf of some of his colleagues who he would rather not be found dead in a ditch with. When Tom Cossitt, the party primitive from Leeds-Grenville, began to rage the other day (with reason) about the government's practice of consulting Liberal MPs on New Horizons grants, it was Clark who carried the burden of the battle for his party.

For another thing, he is patient. Under Clark, the party has been going through a long, slow, painful process of reorganization. It will not pay off soon, it may not pay off in time to do Clark any good, but it is sound policy.

Then again, he is a moderate. This can be seen as a drawback — in most policy areas, it is hard to show that he has firm policies, firmly held — but it reflects, as much as anything else, openness and common decency. Decency is a valuable commodity; so is the capacity to take criticism without reacting as if the canons of immortal truth were under attack. Clark has both qualities in generous measure, and that is why provincial premiers and party luminaries find him easier to talk to than His Eminence, Pierre I.

Finally, Clark is exactly what he holds himself out to be — a consensus politician. His approach is less exciting than the confrontation politics practised by His Eminence, but more worthwhile.

He listens, which is important, and he learns, which is more so.

Large following

For nearly a decade now, he has been reflecting the widespread feeling in this nation that we must redraw our political system closer to the heart's desire, and accede to the regions a greater role in governing. In that — whether you accept or reject his reasoning — he is the spokesman for a substantial body of opinion, not such a bad thing in a politician.

Clark will never send up skyrockets. To say he lacks charisma is like saying the Incredible Hulk lacks finesse. But charisma makes good TV; 12 years of experience suggest that it does not make good government.

Clark is no miracle-worker, but he is no dud either. He is a man for the long haul, and if the Tories dump him, as they are showing signs of wanting to do, we will all be the worse for it.

TOM WICKER

Historic function perverted

NEW YORK — Once again a Carter-controlled Democratic committee has slapped down Sen. Edward M. Kennedy — but this time the continuing Carter-Kennedy conflict seems less important than what the Democrats are doing to their party processes and that venerable American political institution, the national convention.

First, the platform committee gave the back of its hand to virtually all Kennedy's proposals, even though he will go to the convention in August with more than a third of the delegates. If this risks a divided party for the fall campaign, that's Carter's problem; but there's far more involved in the rules committee's decision to require all convention delegates to vote on the first ballot for the candidate they were originally elected to support.

No choice

That may seem straightforward and Carter backers insist that it's "playing fair with the voters" who elected the delegates. But this is a requirement never before imposed on convention delegates by any national party, or demanded by its adherents. It removes from the delegates any shred of responsibility or freedom of choice and makes irrelevant whatever representative function once may have been inherent in the idea of a "delegate" — defined in Webster's Second Collegiate as "a person authorized or sent to speak and act for others."

If the rules committee recommendation is adopted by the convention, delegates will "speak and act" only for a candidate, not for the persons who sent them to the convention. A delegate would become not a real representative of those who elected him, acting on their behalf and accepting the responsibility for his or her actions, but an automatic vote cast in a pre-determined manner.

It's true that delegates billed themselves as for Carter or for Kennedy when elected; obviously they should stand by those positions absent compelling reasons to change. But that's a far cry from saying that they cannot change their minds under any circumstances. Suppose, for only one example, private head-counting had convinced a delegate that those who had elected him had changed their minds too?

And what if, even at this late date, some deserving state party leader decided he wanted to be a favorite son on the first ballot? Is the rules committee telling, say, Connecticut that it could not so honor Abe Ribicoff as he retires from the Senate? And doesn't this ruling mean that someone like Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington could not now enter the race seriously, even if he wanted to, since there would be no hope of success?

The point is that a delegate represents those who elected him, not a particular candidate, and such a delegate should have the discretion to decide how best to discharge his or her representative function. But as the rules committee and Carter would have it, the candidates would control the delegates rather than the other way round. This not only perverts the historic function of the national convention; it all but eliminates any useful convention function.

The whole idea of bringing representatives of a party from all states and factions together under one big roof is for them to deliberate, debate, decide, compromise and conciliate. If a delegate once chosen, perhaps in March, has no function other than to cast a predetermined vote the following August, why hold a convention at all? Why call the roll? Why even have a state primary in June, if some candidate has amassed a pledged majority by the end of May and nothing — no change of circumstance, no national disaster or personal peccadillo — can jar it loose?

What the Democrats really are doing is to confirm, in their party at least, the tyranny of the primaries, more particularly the early primaries, over presidential nominations, when a larger national view is developing that a more representative mix of primary and convention decisions is needed. Whatever its portents for 1980, the precedent being set is likely to come back to haunt the party and the country.

In the lesser context of the Kennedy-Carter battle for the nomination, however, the rules committee action suggests that the president may be nervous about the depth of his support, whatever the numbers on paper.

Illusion of strength

Alternatively, he may be deliberately creating an illusion of strength by continuing to beat up on Kennedy. Either way, if the convention goes along with the first ballot rule, it will deny not only the senator but any Democrat the slightest chance to challenge Carter.

Why should it do that when last June 3 less than half the Democrats who voted in California, New Jersey and Ohio said in exit polls that they would vote for Jimmy Carter in November; and less than a quarter of the Kennedy voters in those three battleground states said they would support the president? With many conservative Democrats ready to vote for Ronald Reagan and many liberals switching to John Anderson, for the party to rubber-stamp Jimmy Carter's renomination through the adoption of inflexible rules would be to stick its head in the sand — or maybe in the oven.

Victoria Landmarks

Owing to duplication of about a hundred street names, City Council, after much discussion, drafted a by-law in 1905 to change these names. A revision of street numbers and the adoption of a numbering system was also proposed because the prevailing mixture of house names and unsystematic numbering was no longer suitable for the rapidly growing City of Victoria.

Accordingly, the Philadelphia, or Decimal system was chosen in line with many contemporary north American cities. Under this system, an even hundred numbers are allotted to each block. The obvious advantage is one of orientation with numbers indicating distance from a given point in the city. One number is allotted every twenty feet. Short streets take their numbers from through streets, and odd numbers are on the south and east sides of the streets.

Dallas Road is the base for all streets running north, and streets running east are numbered from an imaginary line extending north to Harriet Road from the outer wharf.

The impact of these changes is still evidence today when, for example, we note that the address of Emily Carr's family home was formerly 44 Carr Street. The new system changed the address to 207 Government Street where the house may be seen today.

"Finns Elect Woman President" was the heading of the UPI story (Times, June 30). Finland's capital is Helsinki, right? So why was the story datelined Reykjavik (Iceland's capital), and why was the story about a couple of Icelanders? — J. I. Manore, 4404 Tremblay Drive.

Males only

According to the Victoria Times editorial "Political Draft", dated July 3, President Carter is ordering 19 and 20-year-old "youths" to register for a military draft — or else!

Whoever composed the aforementioned editorial forgot to elaborate that the "youths" ordered to register are only supposed to be males.

Surely even if it is embarrassing to feminists or half-feminists, a newspaper must be totally truthful when it comes to reporting how undeniably unequal the oncharging American draft registration scheme really is. — J. Wickstrom, 3264 Shelley Street.

No gambling

Day in, day out, we read and hear about all sorts of schemes to attract tourists to our fair city, to demolish so-called eyesores here and there, to relax drinking regulations in public places, even to introduce the sale of beer on ferries. Sooner or later, some other voices will clamor for some forms of gambling, perhaps under the pious umbrella of benefits going to some "charities".

People who see these tendencies (sponsored and supported by powerful lobbies) with some sensible apprehension and suspicion, are and will be more and more labelled old-fashioned, reluctant to move with progress and unaware that we must go ahead with the 20th century.

Certainly the very meaning of "progress" is extremely controversial because it involves far more than buildings and new forms of lifestyles which, while appealing to some, are repulsive to many.

Before proceeding further along a path leading to unknown consequences with no possible turning back, perhaps it would be wise to pause a little and examine what we have and what we cherish and want to be preserved just the way it is.

Perhaps we should take a look at what happened to Atlantic City, N.Y. and decide whether we want that sort of "progress" or not.

The ringing of cash registers may not be sweet music to one's ears if reached at the expense of suffering of displaced people, elderly forced to leave the downtown areas and relegated in faraway areas where they don't want to live, rental accommodations becoming more and more scarce and expensive while more hotels and other tourist attractions are built creating more and more problems with traffic, parking, and streets overcrowding. — E. I. Lattes, #432-200 Dallas Road.

Our own first

I was surprised to read that 250 Asian refugees will be coming to live in Victoria by September and that it stated there would be no problem regarding work or housing for these people.

I'm sure the people who go looking for work every day at the manpower unit will be surprised too. The coordinator for these refugees says there are plenty of lower paying jobs around. If this is the case I'm sure all the students looking for summer jobs would be glad to know where they are. There are quite a lot still looking for work from what I have read.

And as for housing I'm sure all the people who can't find a place to live would like to know where all the housing to rent is.

I think these do-gooders should start looking after our own people here first. I say charity should start at home. — Mrs. I. Nunn, 101 Hampton.

Province bashing

Senator Ray Perrault has started a new round of province bashing.

He criticizes alleged "provincial potentates who talk in terms of their own heritage, their birthright, their God given resources".

Indeed, B.C.'s resources are our heritage, our birthright, and are God given.

They were also given to us by the Fathers of Confederation — a fact that Senator Perrault would do well to remember.

He complains it is "only by chance that some citizens live in regions with resource riches".

And where for the last 113 years were those tears about geographical accident while Western Canadians paid through the nose via freight rates and tariffs to support vibrant economies in Eastern Canada? — Peter Hyndman, MLA, Vancouver South

WILLIAM SAFIRE
on language

Many academics, diplomats and television commentators share a favored locution that can be described as "the craven conditional" — the weak-kneed, pompously deferential "it would seem" or "I would say."

A growing number of readers (two this year) have taken offence at this assertive shyness. "I am increasingly annoyed," writes Robert Miles of Brooklyn, "by people in public life answering questions put them by beginning, 'I would say that . . . Well, I would say certain things, too, if I thought they were true. But only if.'' Irritated by being subjected to the sub-rosa subjunctive, Miles calls for statesmen with "the courage to use the indicative mood."

Arthur Bruan, also of Brooklyn, the unconditional borough, spotted this statement by Dr. Elliot M. Gross, the city's chief medical examiner: "In a professional office of this type, I would hope that deliberate sabotage would not occur."

Demands Bruan: "What does the good doctor mean? Does he really hope that sabotage will not occur, or is he just half-hoping it? Is he just preparing to hope? Is he just too timorous to indulge in an outright hope? Is he being circumspect or guarded about hoping? How does one ascribe a meaning to his phrase 'would hope'?"

"Maybe and maybe not" is implicit in "would"; the conditional sense has a wish or a worry built in it. "I would say" or "I would think" means, literally, that the speaker would say or think something "if." In recent years, however, this misuse of "would" has become accepted — even embraced — by avid hesitants.

"It would seem" offers a triple helping of mealy-mouthedness. The construction itself passively attributes responsibility to an indeterminate "it"; the "seem" refers to appearances only; the "would" adds such a further condition as to back the phrase off a cliff. The Oxford English Dictionary says the phrase is "used to express somewhat more of hesitation or uncertainty than is expressed by 'it seems.' " I would call it a weasel phrase — and not only would I, I do.

"It seems" is tough-minded. "It would seem'," says the OED "is now chiefly used to express a guarded (or sometimes an ironical) acceptance of statements made by others." In a letter to The New York Times, William Bowdler, an assistant secretary of state probably descended from the editor who published an expurgated version of Shakespeare's plays, stated, "It would seem clear, then, that the junta . . ." Jacques Barzun, author of Simple and Direct, points out that "the writer is obviously calling his unnamed antagonists to attention."

Respected usagarians do not agree with me; Barzun thinks "it would seem" is a "useful and acceptable way of expressing doubt." Bergen Evans takes a middle position: "The thinking or seeming is first placed in the future and then made conditional or uncertain. It is a very modest way of speaking."

But the modesty is usually false. The commentator acts against the words: The phrase you hear on television is intended to carry great authority, not great doubt. It avoids "it seems to me," which is at least an honest weasel.

"Seems, Madame? Nay, it is; I know not seems." That was Hamlet speaking, and they said he was ambivalent, though I am of two minds about that. Would that his kind were speaking in the indicative unconditional today.

Down with 'one'

I have thrown an irrational hate on the formal pronoun "one." One has to lift one's pinky to refer to one's self in the spoken language — why, then, must one use "one" in writing prose? The form is standard British usage, but it has not travelled well; the only American writer who can get away with it, one must add, is William Buckley, who likes to skewer his opponents' rodomontade in a deliberately high-sounding style.

In an age when writing is becoming more personal — more one on one — it makes no sense to strain to retain the impersonal "one." If it makes you feel awkward, you don't have to use it — which comes more comfortably to the pen than "If one feels awkward, one does not have to use it." When a relaxed style is out of place or when informality makes meanings fuzzy, change should be resisted — but when the colloquial voice is suitable and just as precise, there is little reason to hang onto the formal form. The lusty "Write so that people can understand you" is better than the stilted "One should write so that the reader can grasp one's point."

If we've just dumped the impersonal "one," what do we do about the impersonal "they"? "They say" has been tracked to a Ben Jonson play of 1637, and "they" is widely used as an indefinite pronoun to mean "people" — it's a livelier and more forceful construction than the passive "it is said that."

But the singular-made-universal "they" bothers careful writers. "Why do Americans use 'they' so much," writes John Pope of the (New Orleans) Times-Picayune-The States-Item, "as in 'They're going to have a sale'?"

Prof. M. Stanley Whitley of West Virginia University has studied the blurred singular "they" as used in sentences like "Does anyone want their coffee black?" and "Either Hal or Mary sank their teeth into my apple." These are called mistakes because noun and pronoun do not agree, but they are attempts to avoid the "his or her" awkwardness. Moreover, "Either Hal or Mary sank his teeth into my apple" is, Whitley writes, "not just sexist, but downright bizarre."

The professor gets tough: "Grammarians have shown fits of academic apoplexy, inveighing against what they perceive as . . . a deplorable lack of agreement. As a replacement for the impersonal uses, they insist on one, a rather formal pronoun which, despite a strenuous campaign in its favor, has never quite attained the idiomatic and free occurrence among the folk that its foreign cousins — French on, German man and Spanish se — have."

~~Let's deep-six "one."~~ I don't care what they say.

BUCKLEY . . . skewer

To-to or not to to

Showing off the length of my research arm, I recently wrote that "I wrote the British Library." (Most Americans call it the British Museum, but that leaves them cold in London.)

The absence of the preposition "to" was noted by Gerry Loughran of Brooklyn: "I walked my corner store this morning, chatted the storekeeper, picked my copy of The Times and found you had given your respected imprimatur this new form of drastically edited English. I thought I would write you and protest it."

Although I have written a few books, when I wrote, "I wrote the British Library," I did not intend to claim having written the entire contents of that institution. Rather, I meant: I (subject) wrote (predicate) a letter (direct object) to the British Library (indirect object). The question is this: When the direct object ("a letter") is understood, is the preposition "to" needed before the indirect object ("the British Library")? Put less pedantically, do you have to write that you are writing to somebody, or can you just write somebody?

In England, accepted usage calls for the "to"; in America, after more than two centuries of independence, you can forget the "to" after the verb "to write." Don't fuss about logic; that's the way it is. Idioms is idioms, and respect no imprimaturs. The English laugh at our "bums"; we laugh at their "I'll knock you up in the morning."

Peggy Miller, the researcher who handles much of my international linguistic correspondence, summed up her findings with the most scrupulously correct sentence that can be put together on the different usages: "You may write the Library of Congress, but you must write to the British Library."

MEISEL . . . complaining

THE GLOBE AND MAIL

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau has complained on occasion that Canadians are a nation of complainers. Indeed, 12 years of Liberal rule have given most of us a lot to complain about.

But Canadians are really a docile lot. Take, for example, the way they have permitted the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission to dictate, regulate and censor entertainment forms such as radio and television, and to hold back deliberately the introduction of new forms of entertainment, such as pay television and satellite reception of many more entertainment channels.

Let's review a few of the measures the CRTC has taken to interfere with your viewing and listening pleasure:

- You will recall that in the early days of FM radio you could enjoy uninterrupted hours of your favorite music. But the commissioners would not leave well enough alone. They ordered FM broadcasters into "foreground" programming — 20 per cent of a program had to be about the music, not the music itself. That is the incessant chatter that now goes on between records. The FM broadcasters did not want to do it and fought it. Their FM listeners did not want it and protested bitterly. But a handful of men at the CRTC decided that they knew better.
- The commissioners do not content themselves just with deciding such big issues. Oh, no. Applicants for new broadcasting licences, licence transfers and renewals have to submit program formats to these wise men. They decide whether Calgary should have a classical station, Vancouver another rock station, Toronto another country and western station, and what percentage of music shall be played. They do not even stop there, but that is enough for radio.

Let's look at television:

- It might have been thought that the commissioners would confine themselves to such weighty decisions as whether a television station should broadcast its news at 10 p.m. or 11 p.m. No, we're told that between 6 a.m. and midnight, 60 per cent of what we watch must be Canadian content, and that for private stations the breakdown may be 50-50 between 6 p.m. and midnight. Popular American stations have been displaced to make way, on the least costly cable packages, for unpopular Canadian stations.

Do you wonder why so many Canadian shows are inferior to their American counterparts? It is because the commissioners do not really care about quality. They care about quantity. They do not care, either, what you like. They will prescribe what is best for you.

- Commercial-free pay television took off in the United States four or five years ago. First-run movies and special programming appealing to small audiences are the daily fare of Pay TV. Canada has led the world in the development and household penetration of cable television. Canadian entrepreneurs could have led the world in the introduction and development of Pay TV. But the wise men at the CRTC decided that it would be bad for Canadians to have Pay TV. So we do not have it. Millions of Canadians were denied the pleasure this new form of entertainment could have given them. And if the CRTC had not prevented the development of Pay TV in Canada, Canadians might now be operating the major Pay-TV networks in the United States.

What does it all add up to? The commissioners believe that they know what is best for us. They insist that we get it whether we like it or not. We are the prisoners of the CRTC.

The new CRTC chairman, John Meisel, has been doing his own complaining, about the commission having to make too many policy decisions this year under pressure. The CRTC has been around for over a decade. It could have been developing policy.

It has been too busy over-regulating us.

Joggers die fitter

By DAVID MENDEL

Warding off evil spirits?

It's curious that while most laymen accept that "risk factors" — high cholesterol, overweight, high blood pressure, cigarette smoking, lack of exercise, etc. — are the cause of heart attacks, in medical circles intelligent and experienced people hold diametrically opposed views about each factor.

The main difficulties are statistical. Although, for instance, a high cholesterol is often present in patients with heart attacks (the so-called "high correlation"), it is by no means the rule. Indeed, in one study of heart attacks most of the previously healthy patients had no risk factors at all. But even if they had all had a high cholesterol, it would not necessarily mean that it caused the disease, any more than one could say that motorists killed on the roads while wearing safety belts died because they were wearing them. Correlation and causation are not the same thing.

The beneficial effect of exercise is accepted by most laymen and many doctors, in spite of the fact that there is not a single paper in world literature which shows that jogging makes you live a minute longer. The most suggestive paper so far is a Finnish study of men who had been ski-ing regularly for an average of 27 years. They had their heart attacks, on average, two years later than non-skiers, but the results were not statistically significant and the methodology was full of holes.

Joggers are certainly dying fitter, if no later than the rest of us. Indeed, the term "jogging death" is appearing more frequently in the medical press, and several papers have been written which suggests that jogging may be dangerous — in addition to causing backache, ruptured Achilles tendons, cartilage troubles, march fractures, joggers' heel, osteoarthritis, prolonged muscle pain, tendonitis and blisters. A case of penile frostbite has been reported in America. Another hazard is dog bites. (What an eye the canine tooth has for the incongruous!) In the United States, joggers are numerous enough to make collision an additional hazard.

The side-effects of jogging have certainly had a stimulating effect on the practice of doctors of physical medicine and orthopedic surgeons. And it must have done wonders for the sticking plaster industry.

Why are people so keen to jog? Maybe they like the idea that they are doing something to ward off the evil spirit, and if that something is unpleasant it satisfies the puritan feelings, so strong in patients and doctors alike. If you don't feel worse after jogging, you may feel better, and this makes it "stand to reason" that you are doing yourself good. The mere fact that you prove to yourself that you're still capable of sustained exercise is psychologically encouraging, as is the feeling of virtue and superiority over the decadent.

I first lost faith in jogging when I was a registrar at a hospital near Regent's Park, and a 19-year-old boy in a track suit came in carrying his 43-year-old father, also in a track suit, who had had a heart attack while they were jogging round a park. It's my impression that athletes don't live any longer than Oxford dons.

I always peer closely at joggers when I see them, in spite of the inesthetic sight they present, because they often have an interesting mottled skin which you don't see in hospital practice, and which is composed of assorted areas of flush and pallor. This is produced, I think, by a circulation control centre at the end of its tether — overwhelmed by conflicting and half-remembered messages.

People who have kept fairly fit don't need to jog, the unfit may not be robust enough to start. I'm secretary of the English branch of Athletes Anonymous: if you feel exercise coming on, phone a buddy and he talks you out of it.

Belief in risk factors encourages the hope that something can be done to prevent coronary thrombosis. All failures, nowadays, are blamed on the environment — it's more democratic. But, in my view, once you've made the only important decision — that of selecting suitable pairs of genes for your mother and father — you might as well relax and enjoy life. Try and behave in a manner which is dignified and appropriate to your age and physique. Practise moderation in all things, especially in exercise. You may only have a limited mileage, don't waste it.

LIKE THE CRACK OF A GUN, a huge Oak tree shed one of its main branches Saturday temporarily halting traffic and bringing residents of quiet Despard Avenue in Fairfield dashing to the street to check on the commotion. Traffic was halted and buses rerouted before branch fell victim to a chain saw. Residents were puzzled because there was no wind blowing but tree experts know how fickle Oak trees can be. Former anthropologist, Dr. Leechman dies

Dr. John Douglas Leechman, former senior anthropologist with the National Mueeum in Ottawa, died in Victoria Thursday after a lengthy illness.

A well-known writer, teacher and lexicographer, Leechman was born in England in 1891.

He came to British Columbia as a young man, working on country newspapers and on the Canadian Pacific Railway before joining the Canadian army and fighting in Europe in the First World War.

After being discharged in Esquimalt, he studied librarianship at the University of Washington. He worked for a short while for the Provincial Museum in Victoria before taking a junior position with the National Museum. In the next 31 years he rose to become the museum's senior anthropologist.

He also became an expert on Canada's native peoples, wrote a book on the subject and produced an award-winning film based on an Indian legend The Loon Necklace.

He was also a popular speaker and prolific writer and taught writing at Carleton University in Ottawa.

He became the first director of the Glenbow Foundation in Alberta following his retirement. The foundation now has a renowned collection of western Canadian artifacts.

After his retirement from the Glenbow Foundation, Leechman continued his interest in lexicography and was a member of the editorial board of a dictionary of Canadianisms. He was also a consultant to the Oxford English Dictionary.

He is survived by his wife, Ruth.

3 bids for surplus plane but all are rejected

By AB KENT

One of B.C.'s most constant and dependable aircraft has retired from government service after 14 years and more than 7,000 hours of engine time.

But slipping the workhorse out of harness is proving as difficult as adding the turbo conversion to B.C. Air Services fleet back in 1964.

The twin-engine BCF Beech 18 was recently advertised for sale as surplus to government needs and three interested buyers bid on it. Air services rejected all three, presumeably because they were low.

According to an independent source such turbo twins cost up to $400,000, the engines alone worth more than $100,000 each to replace.

The government purchasing commission would not disclose the bids, pending a decision to re-advertise the airplane.

BCF has not been flown for two years and its role was taken over this past spring with the addition of a fourth Citation jet to the Air Services Branch.

But the plane is still in good flying condition despite its age.

B.C. bought the airframe, then 12 years old, from the armed forces, where Beech 18s had been known since Second World War days as the Expeditor. Airmen were taking maintenance instruction on it at Jericho Beach, Vancouver.

The plane was barged over to Patricia Bay airport for rebuilding. Technicians replaced tail section, redesigned the nose and wing, added the 550 hp PT6A turbine engines and tricycle landing gear, giving the plane improved performance, a speed of 275 mph and range of 1,200 miles.

Then they refitted its interior with seating for seven passengers and installed all-new electronic gear.

Quake certain, but nobody runs

By WILLIAM CHAPMAN
The Washington Post

SHIZUOKA, Japan — Some day, possibly soon, a gigantic earthquake will shatter this coastal city and the surrounding region and if it comes without warning the devestation will be staggering.

Nearly 200,000 homes, a fifth of those now standing in Shizuoka prefecture, will be wholly or partly destroyed. Another 32,000 will be swept away by a huge tidal wave. Many fires will break out, destroying another 250,000 homes as the flames race quickly among wooden homes and shops. About 11,000 people will die and 111,000 will be injured.

This is not idle doomsday speculation but the considered judgment of two dozen planners here and many other scholarly experts.Sometime during the next 20 years, they agree, the great Tokai earthquake, named for this coastal region, will occur.

Hiroshi Miyakawa, head of the prefectural Post-Earthquake Planning Bureau, discusses it all calmly. Using a map, he points to a spot in nearby Suruga Bay and explains that far below the surface two giant plates in the earth's crust are grinding slowly against each other in a manner known to precede huge quakes.

"We believe it is certain," he says. "The Tokai earthquake will begin soon. It will be before the year 2000 but we think it will not happen in the next three or four years. So we must finish our plans within that time."

Living with imminent disaster would seem an eerie experience, but, like Miyakawa, the Japanese go about it with the stoicism and meticulous planning that they use to manufacture cars and television sets. Planners tabulate probable deaths. Public opinion surveys tap the people's hidden fears. Newspapers carry routine stories on auto jams amid post-quake chaos.

As little as possible is left to chance. A few hours of warning could make a big difference, so this region on Japan's east-central coast contains more earthquake warning devices than any place except China.

Eighty stations measure tremors on the earth and one cable fitted with four seismometers snakes out into Suruga Bay to record movements undersea. The slope of the land is measured because it is known the bay's coastline is sinking rapidly, foreshadowing a massive upheaval.

Water wells are checked routinely because they are known to subside when a quake is coming. Rocks are bombarded with electrons because their resistance to electrons also foretells a quake. Underground water is tested for increased density of the element called radon.

Some tests are less scientific. In Tokyo, 90 miles away, nine catfish in a tank are watched regularly by marine experts because they are believed to react by sudden movement and erratic jumping at the first sense of tremors coming.

All of these signals — except those of the catfish, whose credentials as sensors are still in doubt — are fed to scientists in Tokyo 24 hours a day. If they add up to an imminent quake, a panel of six distinguished scholars is summoned to meet (each carries a pocket beeper at all times). If they agree on what the signals say, they inform the prime minister who will formally announce that the great Tokai earthquake is on its way.

Japan is one of the world's most earthquake-prone countries and for centuries the people have lived with the knowledge of imminent calamity. An old Japanese legend has it that Japan's four main islands rest on the back of a giant catfish. When the catfish stirs, the legend goes, the islands are rocked.

Using more modern explanations, experts keep meticulous count of the hundreds of annual tremors caused by shifting subterranean plates. There is a theory that major quakes occur in specific locations at more or less regular intervals.

One of the six national earthquake dons, Tatsuo Usami of Tokyo University's Earthquake Research Institute, said that the last Tokai region earthquake occurred in 1854 and by his calculations another will strike there within the next 20 or 30 years.

Instruments record a severe "strain" in the earth far below Suruga Bay, he said. "We are near the ultimate strain," he added, which will mean an earthquake of the maximum intensity of seven on the Japanese scale.

Another sure sign, Usami noted, is the rapid tilting of the earth's surface on the bay's coastline. The coast is sinking while inland areas are rising, a signal that a massive buckling will take place.

For some reason, he added, major earthquakes occur in areas which have been relatively free of tremors in the preceding years. A map of the Tokai region on which prior quakes are noted shows that this particular point on Suruga Bay has been seismically quiet for about 50 years. Usami said it is not known why a peaceful period precedes quakes.

Despite the awareness of oncoming danger, Japanese are traditionally stoical about earthquakes. A public opinion survey of people in Shizuoka prefecture shows that 70 percent agree a disastrous quake will come upon them sometime, but there is no panicky selling of homes or mass departures.

Sodarcan bid to buy Dale-Ross approved

TORONTO (CP) — An offer by Sodarcan Ltd. of Montreal to buy all the shares of Dale-Ross Holdings Ltd. of Toronto for $21 a share has been accepted by directors of Dale-Ross who own a majority of the shares, the companies announced today.

A follow-up offer to minority shareholders is to be made next month at the same price. Trading in shares of Dale-Ross was halted on the Toronto stork market at the opening with the last price at $18.

Dale-Ross and Sodarcan are both holding companies with subsidiaries in the insurance business, primarily corporate insurance.

Dale-Ross has offices in all of Canada's major regions and in the United States and Europe. Sodarcan, a private company whose major shareholder is president Robert Parizeau, operates primarily in Quebec.

The companies said their combined businesses will result in the largest Canadian-owned insurance and reinsurance operation in Canada. Reinsurance is the parcelling out by one company of a portion of the risk in insurance policies to other insurers.

Dale-Ross will continue to operate autonomously with existing management.

Lloyd Stevens, chairman of Dale-Ross and owner of 25 per cent of its shares through his holding company, LFS Investments Ltd., said in an interview the combined companies will have income in fiscal 1980 of about $50 million from brokerage fees and investment revenue. They will employ about 1,200.

Stevens said operations of the two companies are complementary and their combination will contribute to the expansion of services across Canada.

Tricofil

Tricofil, a St. Jerome textile mill purchased by a group of employees after it was closed in 1974, has announced profits of $175,000 for the first four months of the current fiscal year which began March 1.

Study shows executives waste time, money

NEW YORK (AP) — For three weeks last year and this spring, 300 American managers and professionals were interrupted every 20 minutes during the work day by the sound of a buzzer from their jacket pocket.

Each time they were buzzed the executives recorded in a diary their activities at that moment. In all, about 90,000 time samples were analysed and evaluated by researchers seeking to increase productivity.

The conclusion: managers and professionals in the public and private sectors misuse a lot of time, many billions of dollars worth of time.

If the waste were corrected through the use of automated office equipment and services, the researchers found, the potential savings could approach $125 billion a year by 1985, $300 billion by 1990.

Waste in this instance isn't goofing off. In fact, Harvey Poppel, who directed the study, observes that "My experience is that most managers and professionals work at a fairly hectic pace."

It does mean, he says, that they "spend an average of 25 per cent of their time in less productive activities which they believe do not make good use of their time." Such as in making certain phone calls, seeking information, dealing with routine letters and the like.

The study of managerial productivity, long a subject of speculation, was conducted by the consulting firm of Booz, Allen & Hamilton among 15 organizations, with additional support from many of the big suppliers of automated office equipment and services, such as A.T. and T. and IBM.

Poppel, a senior vice-president, concluded that through the use of automated office machines an average of 15 per cent of "knowledge worker" time could be saved by 1985, greatly increasing productivity.

In, for example, word processing, a once pretentious term that might have involved only a typist bank that turned out letters for the entire office, but which now might involve dictating units, information retrieval units, video display terminals and memory typewriters.

Personal computing devices, said Poppel, can greatly enhance output. Using one, an engineer can estimate stresses; an insurance executive can call up actuarial tables; a marketing man can set sales goals.

Electronic mail, such as from one video terminal to another, offers almost instantaneous communication. And video conferencing can save travel time and other expenses in bringing executives together.

Electronic information retrieval devices right now could be used to save almost countless hours of executive time by making available hard to get data, Poppel says. Information that, should a device be available, could be obtained from internal or external data banks.

What frustrates equipment makers, and perhaps to a lesser extent the companies that can benefit from automated systems, is man's natural caution about change. Poppel concedes, "You cannot rush a process of change."

Nevertheless, he calls the resistance factor "a consideration, not an obstacle." He feels industry is bound to recognize the benefits that can come from the wise deployment of office automation systems.

The study concludes that by 1985 some 15 per cent of "knowledge worker" time can be saved through automation, giving a significant boost to white collar productivity in private and public sectors.

The "opportunity value" of such savings — that is, time saved times compensation involved — is equivalent, says Poppel, to 15 per cent of operating income before taxes for the type of organizations studied.

He liked the shaver, bought the company

"My wife bought me this Remington Micro Screen shaver. I was impressed — so impressed, I bought the company."

That commercial has been aired across Canada for the last month as the new and iconoclastic president of Remington Products Inc. tries to coax Canadian consumers into helping him turn the company around.

Years ago Remington held the No. 1 position in Canada's electric shaver market and Kiam says it was at the top of the U.S. market too.

Kiam bought out Remington's assets last year, a $25-million go-it-alone gamble, and almost all of it someone else's money. In an impressive show of venture capitalism, the Chemical Bank, Chase Manhattan and seller Sperry Rand Corp. all helped him leverage most of the money for the deal on the strength of his reputation.

And Kiam didn't take long to make his presence known, firing about 100 staff members and cutting the number of Remington shaver styles on the market down to about nine from 13.

And he increased Remington's share of the U.S. market in 1979 to about 28 per cent from seven per cent.

For the last two years Remington's share of the Canadian market levelled off at about 22 per cent. This year it hopes for an increase as it doubles its Canadian advertising budget.

The Sperry Remington electric razor division had been nothing but annoying for the former parent company, now the Sperry Corp., when it decided to sell last year. Shavers were becoming irrelevant to Sperry's overall plans, which focused increasingly on computers.

With 27 years in consumer products marketing, Kiam had always wanted to be the "controlling factor of a very, very large company."

In 1968 he and some associates bought the Benrus Watch Co., of which he was president, then chairman, before packing it in two years ago when the company couldn't cope with competition in the digital watch market. He's still the largest shareholder in the public company.

At that time he heard Remington was for sale, and he had never used an electric razor in his life.

But the story in the commercial is true — Kiam has had to swear several affidavits to conform to truth-in-advertising rules. His wife Ellen went out and bought him a Remington shaver, and he liked it.

"Remington's problem was its inability to market its product successfully," he says now. "The company was run by engineers. They had a great product but they didn't know what to do with it."

Kiam said Remington had priced some of its shavers out of the market so he's dropped those prices while retaining the products at the top of the line.

Kiam's Harvard Business School training tells him the demand for electric shavers is there, even though the U.S. shaver market has been stagnant at about five million units for the last three or four years. Remington wants to go after the "blade" guy like Kiam himself was, not just consumers of competitive electric shavers.

U.S. retail sales rising

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. consumers apparently have taken to heart the Carter administration's advice to start buying again.

The commerce department says retail sales rose 1.4 per cent in June, ending a four-month decline caused in part by the government's campaign to tighten credit as a brake on inflation.

"This is very encouraging news," Courtenay Slater, the department's chief economist, said Thursday. "It is a sign that the decline is slowing and things are approaching the point of turn-around. But I don't think we've hit the bottom of the recession."

Sandra Shaber of the private Chase Econometrics said the sales report "is further evidence that the worst declines in consumer spending are over." She, too, cautioned against over-optimism that the recession is ending, noting that consumer incomes still are being eroded by inflation and that the health of the automobile industry is poor.

The commerce department said sales in June totalled $75.35 billion, an increase of 4.5 per cent over a year ago. Sales in May had fallen one per cent.

Friedman's cure another's poison

TORONTO (CP) — Milton Friedman, a U.S. economics professor and Nobel Prize winner, was selling a free-enterprise prescription for Canada's ailing economy to a group of businessmen, while in another part of the same hotel, a smaller audience was told the medicine is poisonous.

Friedman, 68, told a conference sponsored by The Financial Post that the major problem facing the Western world is the erosion of freedom.

"The fundamental problem is the ideological conflict that is raging between believers in a doctrine that would have the individual an instrument of the state or other collective entities and believers in the doctrine of freedom that we in the Western world have benefitted from so much."

The audience of 300 at the $285-a-seat conference applauded when Friedman suggested the governments of Canada and the United States could stimulate growth by reducing the maximum income tax level to 25 per cent.

Friedman also voiced his well-known beliefs in monetarism — the idea that tight control of the money supply is a necessary condition for curbing inflation — and offered Chile as an example.

He said Chile's inflation rate in 1973 averaged between 500 and 1,000 per cent and now has been cut to 25 per cent.

"It was achieved entirely by reducing the rate of monetary growth.

"In the process, the initial effect was severely adverse. There were temporary difficulties, but for the past three or four years output has been growing very rapidly, the economy has been prospering ... on the economic side you are having an economic miracle."

He said monetarist measures may exact a high price, but are the only cure for inflation.

"We can either suffer a temporary period of slow growth as a side effect of curing inflation or get ready for a more severe period of slow growth and high unemployment as a consequence of not curing inflation."

At the same time, in a small room where a group of Chileans gathered with several Canadian economists, Friedman was denounced as an ideologue who panders to the wealthy and powerful.

Mel Watkins, an economist at the University of Toronto and a leader of the now-defunct Waffle wing of the Ontario New Democratic Party, dismissed Friedman's theories as "the kinds of views the business elite likes to hear."

"We'd be better to do nothing than to pursue the kind of policies that Friedman represents."

An expatriate wing of the Chilean workers' central committee delivered a statement condemning Friedman's ideas as providing intellectual support for the oppressive military junta in Chile.

His policies "have been largely responsible for the impoverishment of the Chilean workers and for the ruination of small and medium industry."

"It is thanks to his advice that the Chilean junta adopted the policy of low wages for Chileans and open doors to foreign imports. Whole industries have been brought to ruin by the entry of vast quantities of products that were once made at home."

Trendicator rise laid to booming market

MONTREAL (CP) — Good showings by Canadian oil and gas stocks pushed up the Royal Bank of Canada's "Trendicator" at an annual rate of 1.1 per cent in the first quarter of 1980, despite poor performances in housing starts, steel production, business solvency and labor productivity.

The bank said its index of 11 leading economic indicators foreshadows the direction of future economic activity in Canada and now stands at 105.95, up from 105.66 in last year's third quarter.

"Strength in the Canadian stock market currently reflects a healthy optimism in Canada's longer-run economic future, overwhelming the shorter-term reality of the business cycle — that is, recession," bank economists wrote.

"Once we remove the stock market components from 'Trendicator,' the first-quarter gain becomes a 0.6-per-cent decline. This decline is expected to be sustained through the second quarter, signalling the continuation of slow economic activity through the remainder of the year and into early 1981."

Winnipeg commodity exchange switches to the computer age

WINNIPEG (CP) — The computer age arrived at the Winnipeg Commodity Exchange as it opened for trading last week in its new facilities at the downtown crossroads of Portage Ave. and Main Street.

"After nearly 100 years of manual handling, it is amazing how smoothly the transitiion to a computerized system in new premises went," said Peter Perkins of Herald Grain Co.

"It's the same organized chaos," said Jack Macgillivray of Canada Malting Company. "But when it opened at 9:30 like clockwork, it was obvious there would be advantages."

The commodity exchange began the move to new facilities after the close of trading Friday. The old Grain Exchange Building had housed the exchange since 1908.

Five microcomputers now do the work of feeding the information of trades and prices to electronic boards and then into the information systems for internal and external use. The chalk boards are gone and ten women who did the chalking have been retrained as keyboard entry specialists.

The commodity exchange spent $1 million on the automation and relocation program to meet a growing trade volume, said exchange president Doug Ford.

"Our volume of trade increased by 50 per cent, with 2.1 million contracts traded worth between $9 billion and $10 billion. This year another 15 to 16 per cent rise is happening and we expect 2.4 million contracts with $10 to $12 billion worth of trade."

Current trade is in feed grains, oilseeds and gold. Trade in financial instruments, futures contracts on costs of credit based on government money raising issues, is expected to be added this year.

China big on PNE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The first Chinese trade show to visit Canada, scheduled for the 1981 Pacific National Exhibition, will be one of the largest displays at next year's fair.

China's Council for the Promotion of International Trade originally requested 2,000 square feet of space, Erwin Swangard, PNE president, said.

But the PNE has closed a deal which gives the Chinese display 20,000 square feet, plus the option for 5,000 square feet for selling Chinese goods.

"They're going to have a real show," Swangard said after meeting with Ke Yeh-Chih, China's consulate-general in Vancouver.

Company reports

Mitel

Mitel Corp. had revenues of more than $20 million for the first quarter of 1980, more than triple those of the same period a year ago.

The international manufacturer of telecommunications equipment recently held its first annual general meeting as a public company.

Revenues for the 13 weeks ended May 30, 1980, totalled $20,336,000, compared to $6,381,000 a year ago. Earnings for the quarter have risen to 19 cents a share from seven cents a share last year.

A perfect day

The weather was superb and the timing was perfect Saturday for the annual Fairfield Community picnic at Beacon Hill Park. Neighborhood picnickers made the most of it and were royally entertained by Whacker the clown (lower left), mime artist Raima (centre), music and dancing. And as usual the youngsters were front and centre, even when they were simply taking a quiet moment like Harmony Harper, 4, (left in lower right photo) and Cacia Goodacre, 3, for some ice cream while making sure the balloons stayed put.

In case you're wondering

I know that many oranges and all pink grapefruit from California are impregnated with color and that it's no longer necessary to have the fruit stamped "coloring matter added." However, I can't convince several of my friends and I wonder if you can check about the current situtation. M.H.

Hope you didn't bet on this one. We've checked with the federal consumer affairs department, the Consumer's Association and Sunkist Growers Ltd. and have learned that today little coloring is added to oranges and grapefruit.

A spokesman from Sunkist's office in Vancouver said its fruit, which comes from California and Arizona, is not permitted, by legislation in those states, to have color added.

Fruit from Texas and Florida is ocassionally treated by having coloring added to the wax which is put on the fruit after its own natural wax is removed during a washing stage.

The Sunkist spokesman said that contrary to popular belief pink grapefruits are not colored. They are the result of cross-breeding but are indistinguishable in taste from white grapefruit.

A check with material from the consumer's association showed no indication that oranges or grapefruits are colored.

Federal legislation in Canada does permit some coloring to be used in the fruits in specified quantities. The legislation calls for the cartons containing such colored fruit to be marked with the information.

Police talks resume

Provincial mediator Bob Almgren has called both parties in the Victoria area police dispute together for a meeting Wednesday.

Almgren earlier withdrew from the contract dispute involving about 190 Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt policemen so apparently he will be at the meeting in an unofficial capacity.

The policemen began a limited strike Wednesday. They are wearing civilian clothes to work and refusing to do paperwork.

The policemen, along with their counterparts in Saanich, have been bargaining for the first time as a group with the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association, rather than with their individual police boards.

Saanich police are not in a legal position to strike because, unlike the other policemen whose contracts expired Dec. 31, 1979, theirs is in force until the end of the year.

The main issue in the dispute is the standardization of the four contracts.

No beer, more ordered

Greater Victoria liquor stores were cleaned out of beer on Saturday and most were still waiting for more this morning.

In a survey of five stores, only one, in James Bay at 230 Menzies, had beer and a spokesman cautioned that there was not a whole lot.

The panic-buying of the brew began Friday following reports that talks involving employees at B.C.'s three major breweries had broken off and the companies had served 72-hour lockout notice.

The Foul Bay liquor outlet sold the beer it had in an hour Saturday as people lined up outside the stores.

Meanwhile, there is a glimmer of hope that a brewery shutdown can be averted.

Mediator Ken Albertini met today with brewery representatives and officials of the Brewery, Winery and Distillery Workers Union.

Albertini is involved in an unofficial capacity as he had earlier agreed to a company request that he report out of the dispute.

Everybody jumped, survived

Seven passengers and crew of the 26-foot sightseeing boat Quadra received minor burns when the vessel burst into flame after refuelling at Comox Sunday afternoon.

RCMP said the boat had just pulled away from the fuel dock in Comox harbor when it caught fire. All those aboard jumped over the side and were picked up immediately by other boaters.

Police said a fire marshal's investigation is being carries out. It appears the fire was caused by gasoline fumes accumulated when fuel was being taken aboard.

Glengarry RNs stage sit-in in cafeteria

The nurses began a sit-in at the cafeteria about 10 a.m.

Jerry Miller of Vancouver, spokesman for the Registered Nurses Association, said the issue centres around management's refusal to implement an arbitration board ruling related to the change of status of three nurses.

He said the protest at the 225-bed hospital was not organized by the RNABC but initiated locally.

Miller said RNABC officials are coming over from Vancouver to see what the problem is.

The nurses say the sit-in will continue until they get satisfaction on a change of status of the nurses from permanent full-time to regular part-time.

There are about 46 RNs employed at Glengarry and a nurse at the hospital said all essential services are being maintained during the sit-in.

Man hurt seriously in mishap

One man was seriously hurt Saturday night when the car in which he was a passenger left the road and slammed into the ditch in the 4000-block Wilkinson Road.

John Fletcher, whose address was unavailable from police this morning, suffered fractured ribs in the mishap and is in fairly good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Lorne David Lussier, 21, of 561 Seacrest, suffered an injured leg but was not taken to hospital.

Sound of water lifesaver

The sound of running water awakened Albert Olsen before dawn today, and Esquimalt police say it might have saved him from dying in a fire.

Sgt. Jack Wright said Olsen smelled something — not fire or smoke — around 11 p.m. Sunday in his suite at 835 Selkirk.

When he was awakened by the sound of running water just before 5 a.m., he investigated and discovered there was smoke coming from the suite of Pamela Pringle on the floor below.

Olsen tried to phone in the alarm but the fire had melted the phone wires.

The call was made at an apartment across the street.

Residents of the two-storey, five-suite block were evacuated. One suite was vacant and the nurse occupant of the fifth was on night duty.

Wright said the fire started in a recessed infrared light in the Pringle bathroom, even though the light wasn't turned on.

He said the fire was contained to the ceiling of the Pringle suite and he estimated damage at about $12,000. There was considerable smoke damage to two of the suites and light smoke damage to the remaining two.

Wright said he believes the fire burned for more than five hours before the alarm was turned in.

He said what Olsen smelled the evening before was probably the fire. The resulting heat melted a solder connection of a water pipe, causing the running water Olsen heard this morning.

Duncan murder motive, suspect still sought

By DEREK SIDENIUS

The RCMP investigation into the July 3 slaying of Suzanna Seto in Duncan is grinding ahead slowly with officers still far from coming up with a suspect, let alone a motive.

Insp. Bruce Terkelsen of Victoria subdivision headquarters said on the weekend four teams of two officers have been interviewing every person who was a guest or employee at the Village Green Inn where the 29-year-old Vancouver real estate appraiser was staying the night of her murder.

Terkelsen said the teams have travelled to several points on the Island and Lower Mainland tracking down guests who left before they could be interviewed.

That part of the investigation is expected to be completed this week.

Where next? Police aren't saying.

Terkelsen said investigators are chasing down all leads no matter how tenuous the connection.

For example, officers were intrigued by last week's arrest in Seattle of a man charged with kidnapping a woman and holding her for ransom in that city.

Because the woman was an oriental and a realtor, like Seto, and because the incident took place in a hotel, police wondered if the two cases might be related.

But Capt. John Leitch of Seattle police homicide said in an interview that while the suspect's whereabouts in early June haven't been completely checked out, he felt the possibility of any link is remote.

Terkelsen agreed but said finger prints of the man have been requested for comparisons.

Terkelsen called the Seto murder one of the toughest he has ever been involved with in a career that includes 14 years as a homicide detective.

In these terms it ranks with the notorious kettle-bombing murder in Burnaby some years ago, he said.

In that case a young newly-married couple was killed when they plugged in a kettle in which two sticks of dynamite and a blasting cap had been secreted.

Four years passed before officers finally got the break they were looking for — a handwriting sample which matched that on the package the kettle had been mailed in. The sample was the 99th the crime lab had analysed.

But there is one important difference between the two cases.

In the Seto case they still have neither.

Muscovites receive one final warning

MOSCOW (AP) - With the first Olympic visitors arriving in Moscow, a local newspaper gave its readers one final warning Sunday — to be careful of foreigners who might poison their minds with Western ideas.

The newspaper Sovietskaya Rossiya warned that some of what the Russians call "ideological saboteurs" might look young and innocent but that they are being specially trained at holding "heated political debates."

The article, headlined "anti-Olympic provocations," was the latest in a campaign that has included warnings on television and in newspapers and a policy statement by Viktor Grishin, Moscow's Communist Party chief.

The warnings, which appear intended to isolate Russians from an unprecedented influx of foreigners, have in some cases had the opposite effect, arousing curiosity in a city that had begun to grow used to the presence of foreigners.

Some Muscovites, who say they have even been warned privately that foreign visitors may offer them poisoned chewing gum, laugh about their government's worries.

They say Russians who will have contact with foreign visitors have been given warnings about venereal disease, and have been given injections against such exotic diseases as yellow fever, plague and even hoof and mouth disease.

"Hoof and mouth disease — who do they think we'll be dealing with animals?" asked one.

Sovietskaya Rossiya said to watch "people under 30 years of age speaking Russian or other languages spoken in the Soviet Union and skilled in holding heated political debates."

These people, the popular Moscow newspaper said, have been recruited from American universities and trained at special subversive centres in Western Europe and Britain.

In addition, it said:

"A number of U.S. publishing houses are fulfilling orders for subversive anti-Soviet literature which is to be smuggled into Moscow.

"Special firms have been set up to manufacture double-bottomed suitcases, underwear with secret pockets, boxes of sweets and cans of coffee stuffed with leaflets and pamphlets on tissue paper."

More than a year ago, Grishin inaugurated the campaign of vigilance in a speech in which he called for "a sharp-class sensitivity, ideological firmness and conviction and political vigilance."

He warned against "the danger of attempts by the enemies of Socialism to throw off balance our moral and political unity and to undermine the patriotism and Communist conviction of the Soviet people."

Since then, a television special titled Lies and Hatred documented attempts by foreigners to smuggle in Bibles or meet with dissidents.

Newspaper articles have warned that Olympic visitors may bring in "all sorts of shirts, packets, bags, raincoats, umbrellas and so forth with pictures of various renegades and traitors" — apparently meaning Soviet dissidents.

And Russians who will deal with foreigners as translators or guides have been given political lectures on vigilance.

The Soviet press has described the United States-led boycott of the Olympics as a simple attempt to sabotage the Games out of pure "anti-Soviet sentiment."

Sovietskaya Rossiya said those people who do come to Moscow, "posing as friends," may be dangerous to talk to with their alien ideas.

Oldest golf club may be world's most exclusive

MUIRFIELD, Scotland — The Honorable Company of Edinburgh Golfers is the world's oldest golf club and it may also be the most exclusive.

The company will put aside its tradition, which dates back to 1744, and allow the outside world into its course at Muirfield for the 1980 British Open, starting Thursday.

Normally, you cannot play there without an introduction from a member or someone else of stature, such as the club secretary, and even then you may have to book your starting time a year in advance.

If you are female, look elsewhere for your game. There are no women members, and women visitors are tolerated only occasionally, if they are playing with men. They are not allowed into the clubhouse.

The company has 660 members but even its children cannot join until they are 21 — and only if their names were listed when they were 21.

But from time to time since 1892, a year after it moved to Muirfield from nearby Musselburgh, the company has played host to the Open and this will be the 12th time it has been held on what has come to be regarded as one of the finest golfing venues in the world

Golfers have been paying tribute to Muirfield almost since the day it opened, but perhaps the finest accolade has come from American Jack Nicklaus, winner of the event here in 1966.

Nicklaus calls it simply "the best golf course in Britain," and in testimony to his feelings for the course, he built one in Ohio — and named it Muirfield.

The Opens at Muirfield have invariably produced exciting finishes and every winner has been a recognized top player in his day.

The 1892 winner was Harold Hilton, the first and last amateur to win at Muirfield and the last British amateur to compete successfully against professionals. He won a second Open in 1897.

Harry Vardon won the next Muirfield open, in 1896 after a 36-hole playoff against J.H. Taylor.

James Braid won a total of five Opens, including those at Muirfield in 1901 and 1906, and Ted Ray coasted to an easy victory by four strokes in 1912 after taking a five-shot lead into the final round.

In 1929, American professional Walter Hagen, a member of the United States Ryder Cup team, which had just suffered a rare defeat at the hands of the British, recorded a magnificent victory in cold, bleak conditions and bitter gales.

It was Hagen's fourth and last triumph in the event, and perhaps his best, for to win he had to show the ability to improvise his shotmaking in the extremely difficult conditions.

The 1935 winner was a bit of a surprise, Alfred Perry taking the title when Henry Cotton had been heavily favored to retain the championship he had won the previous year.

But Cotton made amends when Muirfield next played host to the event in 1948, winning for the third time in his career.

Cotton created a course record of 66 in the second round with an immaculate display of accurate driving and iron play. The record had since been equalled, but not broken.

The modern era can be said to have arrived at the Open in 1959, when the winner at Muirfield was 23-year-old South African Gary Player, who went on to become one of the greats of the game and who won again in 1968 and 1974.

Player was among the leading groups in the final round and had a two-hour wait at the end before he knew he had won when the other contenders tried and failed to match his total of 284.

Nicklaus's victory in 1966 came in his fifth attempt at the Open and pleased him immensely because he has to discard some of his prodigious length in windy conditions.

The last winner at Muirfield, in 1972, was American Lee Trevino, who successfully defended his title in a tournament during which he chipped into the hole from off the green four times.

The last, on the 17th hole in the final round, effectively destroyed the challenge of Britain's Tony Jacklin, the 1969 British Open and 1970 U.S. Open champion, and Jacklin has never really been the same since.

The last three of those winners, Player, Nicklaus and Trevino, are among the favorites for this year's tournament which begins on Thursday.

American Tom Watson will be in search of his fourth British Open title to go with the ones he took in 1973, 1975 and 1977.

Eighty countries listed for Olympics

MOSCOW (AP) — Eighty countries were listed officially today as competing in the boycott-weakened Summer Olympic Games.

The list was issued by the International Olympic Committee. Eight more countries were posted by the Moscow organizing committee at Olympic Village, but there was no clear indication whether these were sending athletes.

The IOC recognizes 146 national Olympic committees around the world and all of these are entitled to enter competitors. This means that 66 might be absent, but not all of these were supporting the boycott initiated by U.S. President Jimmy Carter following the Soviet military occupation of Afghanistan.

Many are small countries, some only recently recognized by the IOC, and cannot afford to send teams.

When entries officially closed May 24, the IOC announced 85 national committees had accepted the invitation to compete in the Games. Five of these were missing from the list Sunday — Gabon, Upper Volta, Mauritius, Niger and Surinam.

The IOC's list included the policy each country will follow in the Games. Some plan to withhold their athletes from the opening parade. Others will use the five-ringed Olympic flag instead of their national flags, to indicate their independence from politics and to avoid any demonstration of sympathy with Soviet foreign policy.

A spokesman at the village said 67 delegations had arrived. The Games open next Sunday.

The countries listed by the IOC as competing were:

Denmark, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Spain, Ethiopia, Finland, France, Great Britain, Greece, Guatemala, Guinea, Guyana.

Uganda, Holland, Peru, Poland, Puerto Rico, Portugal, East Germany, Korea, Romania, San Marino, Senegal, Seychelles, Sierra Leone, Sri Lanka, Sweden, Switzerland, Syria.

Tanzania, Czechoslovakia, Trinidad and Tobago, Soviet Union, Venezuela, Vietnam, Yugoslavia, Zambia, Zimbabwe.

At the Village, the Russians had nine more countries listed as expected to take up residence — Belize, Bolivia, Bahamas, Gambia, Salvador, Surinam, Uganda, Virgin Islands and Niger.

PREPARING for her event at London, England, Sunday, Debbie Brill of Aldergrove, B.C., is deep in concentration and apparently oblivious to contestants in mile run. Debbie later won high jump, setting United Kingdom all-comers' record with leap of 1.95 metres. Another Canadian winner in 18-country meet was Ottawa discus-thrower John Corazza, who had also won his event Saturday at Stuttgart, West Germany, where Toronto's Angella Taylor took women's 200 metres. First win is target as Aussies clash with Americans

Both the United States and Australia will be seeking to get off the mark when they meet in the Nations in 1980 world box lacrosse championship series at Memorial Arena tonight at 8.

Both are winless in two starts in the round-robin part of the tournament.

Coquitlam Adanacs (Canada West) lead the series with three straight victories, the third coming here on the late, late show Saturday night in a well-played, come-from behind 9-7 decision over the Canada East club from Brooklin, Ont.

In second place are North American Native Warriors 2-1; third, Canada East 1-1; and fourth, United States 0-2 and Australia 0-2.

It took a six-goal, third period outburst by Coquitlam to secure the win in a game in which Brooklin had the Adanacs in trouble but couldn't put them away.

Brooklin led 5-3 after the second period and 6-3 early in the third, before Coquitlam managed to solve goalkeeper Wayne Colley, who turned in an excellent game for the Redmen.

Randy Bryan started the Coquitlam resurgence and Dan Wilson and Tim Kelly scored to tie the score 6-6.

Brooklin's Bill Down, with his second, gave the Redmen the lead again, but it wasn't enough. Dave Cochrane, Matt Aitken and Rico Bellusci scored for the Adanacs and a major upset had been averted.

Goalkeeper Greg Thomas turned in a strong game for the Adanacs and was awarded the Coquitlam game star. Colley got the honor for Brooklin.

Start of the game was delayed for two hours and 15 minutes when the plane carrying the Coquitlam players developed engine trouble and was forced to return. An alternative aircraft then had to be found.

At Vancouver, Chuck Martin and Jeff Guss each scored four goals and Wayne Baker got three goals and seven assists as the North American Natives thrashed Australia 26-4.

Budgets doing well as Canada wins two

TACOMA — With the help of both pickups from Victoria Budgets, Canada now has a 2-0 record in the 14-team fifth annual World fastball championships.

Canada is tied with Mexico and New Zealand for first place in Group B with 2-0 records.

The United States leads the seven-team Group A with a 3-0 record.

John Green of Victoria helped out at the plate Sunday as Canada blanked Taiwan 7-0 and the other Victorian, Rob Guenter, tossed a one-hitter Saturday to lead Victoria to a 3-1 win over Argentina.

About 1,000 fans were on hand as Cowdrey struck out 16 batters and walked one in the game at South End Park.

Canada unleashed a 12-hit attack against Hsieh Yu-Fiu, who went the distance for Taiwan. The loss dropped Taiwan's won-lost record to 1-2.

Bob Stuart of Niagara Falls, Ont., started the Canadian scoring in the first inning. He walked, went to third on a two-base error and scored on a single by Green, who finished up with two hits (the other a double) in three trips.

On Saturday, Canada scored the winning and insurance runs in the eighth inning on an error and a wild pitch. Green was one-for-four.

In other games Sunday, Mexico downed Panama 2-0, Taiwan defeated Panama 6-4, Japan downed Guam 5-3, the U.S. beat Dominican Republic 4-3, Bahamas edged by Virgin Islands 2-1, New Zealand trounced New Guinea 24-0, Mexico beat Argentina 10-0 and Guam shut out South Africa 2-0.

Panama and Papua are third in Group B with 0-2 records while in Group A, Bahamas follow the U.S. with a 2-0, Dominican Republic is 2-1, Guam, Japan and the Virgin Islands are 1-2 and South Africa is 0-2.

The round-robin portion of the tournament finishes Thursday.

Victoria clubs take Little League titles

Lakehill and Gordon Head won provincial titles when the B.C. girls' Little League softball championships ended Sunday.

With a 29-9 victory over Little Mountain of Vancouver in the last game, Lakehill completed the four-team round-robin tournament unbeaten to take the senior (13 to 15-year-olds) crown at Layritz Park.

Gordon Head, which suffered its only loss Saturday — a 12-5 defeat at the hands of Lakehill — downed Layritz 17-13 in Sunday's senior other game.

But Gordon Head swamped Little Mountain 20-2 to win the majors (11 and 12-year-olds) title at Lakehill Park.

Layritz defeated Lakehill 9-3 in Sunday's other game but Gordon Head finished with three straight triumphs to collect the tournament crown.

Smythe, Jackson city tennis champs

Top seed Peter Smythe rallied after dropping the first set to score a 1-6, 6-3, 7-5 victory over Racquet Club of Victoria pro Russ Hartley Saturday and capture the men's singles title in the Victoria City Open Tennis Championships.

Enid Jackson, a former English grass-court player and Canadian Seniors champion, was devastating in the women's events, crushing the normally steady Sandra Moss 6-0, 6-0 in the singles final and then combining with Sally Hemeon to down Ann Graham and Wendy Cuppage 6-1, 6-0 to take the doubles crown.

Hartley made up a little for his singles loss by teaming with Marty Taylor to win the men's doubles with a 6-3, 6-2 decision over Ken Milne and Ken Mason.

And Taylor took a second title when he and Kelly Davies beat Dale Willard and Jill Glowicki in the mixed doubles final.

Mason took the men's "B" singles with a 6-3, 6-2 win over Don Marnell and Peggy Howes, a former Times Public Parks Tennis Tournament champion, took the women's "B" singles, downing Kathy Lebow 6-3, 6-2 in the final.

Kerry Chan, winner of both the men's and junior boys' singles titles in last year's Times Parks tourney, captured two City "B" titles. Kerry teamed with his brother Lorne Chan to fight back for a 1-6, 6-4, 6-2 victory over Ed Ho and Gary Kobley in the men's doubles final and then he and Liz Ellis beat Fred Graham and Wendy Cuppage 6-1, 6-1 to add the mixed doubles crown.

Kathy Lebow and Joan Antrobus edged out Noreen Walmsley and Cindy Bray 7-6, 6-4 in the women's "B" doubles final.

There was only one "C" event — the men's singles — and it went to James Meihuizen who defeated Kevin Burr 1-6, 6-0, 7-5.

By The Canadian Press

Manager Bobby Cox lost both battles and his Atlanta Braves lost both games as Houston Astros gained an element of revenge for a National League baseball series that is gone but hardly forgotten.

It was nearly two weeks ago in Atlanta that the Braves recorded 5-4, 13-4 and 14-0 triumphs over the Astros. Those three losses in the four-game series were very much on the minds of the Astros when the just-ended weekend series renewed the rivalry.

"We wanted to show them that we could play better than we did there," explained Houston's Denny Walling. "They really embarrassed us in Atlanta."

This time, the Astros won three times, taking the opener 9-5 Saturday and following with a 6-5, 6-1 sweep Sunday night in a doubleheader that saw Cox ejected twice by umpire Lanny Harris, third baseman Bob Horner ejected by Eric Gregg and one of baseball's strangest bench-clearing incidents this season.

The non-brawl came after Houston's Rafael Landestoy was struck on the shin by a Tommy Boggs pitch in the sixth inning of the nightcap. Words were exchanged between Landestoy and Boggs, and both teams left their dugouts.

But almost remarkably, the teams obeyed Gregg when he and the other umpires waved the players to neutral corners. Some 50 feet separated the teams, who stood on the field and jawed for a few minutes before returning to their dugouts.

In other NL games, New York Mets swept St. Louis Cardinals 7-4 and 10-4, San Francisco Giants beat Cincinnati Reds 2-0, Montreal Expos nipped Chicago Cubs 2-1, San Diego Padres edged Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3 in 15 innings and Pittsburgh Pirates downed Philadelphia Phillies 7-3.

Cox knew why he argued twice with Harris. The first time was because he thought Chris Chambliss had checked his swing on a third strike in the third inning of the opener.

"He didn't go around," Cox insisted. "That call really hurt us."

The second time came in the fifth inning of the nightcap, when Harris called Cesar Cedeno safe at third on what seemed a questionable call.

"The throw beat him by five feet. I don't know how he could have called him safe."

Horner was heaved in the fourth inning of the second game for insisting — too strongly — he had beaten out a grounder to third baseman Enos Cabell.

Houston's Terry Puhl, a native of Melville, Sask., had seven hits in the twinbill, including a third-inning homer in the nightcap. Craig Reynolds, who entered the doubleheader hitting .177, reached base seven of eight times.

Pitcher Don Robinson hit his first major league homer, a two-run shot in Pittsburgh's four-run second, and pitched 8 1-3 innings of seven-hit ball to boost the Pirates over the Phillies.

Merchants near junior ball title

VANCOUVER — Victoria Merchants moved to within one victory of clinching first place in the Pacific Junior Baseball League by winning three out of four games at the weekend.

On Saturday, Merchants edged Burnaby 1-0 after Pharaohs had blanked the Victorians 8-0.

Adrian Hollard scored three of Victoria's runs in the 6-1 victory after reaching base on a walk and two of the five Vancouver errors.

In the second Sunday game, Craig Gillespie had two hits in four trips to the plate and drove in one run while leadoff batter Dale Schmidt and catcher Mike Bull scored two runs each. Larry Wedgewood picked up the pitching win with a three-hitter.

On Saturday, Paul Hrach threw a three-hit shutout, striking out 11 batters and yielding only one base on balls for the Victoria win while Marty Brouard singled in the lone run with two out in the ninth inning.

Victoria 111 100 2— 6 8 1
Vancouver 000 010 0— 1 4 5

Dean Potter 5-0 and Mike Bull; Dave Bee 1-2, Bob King (6) and Drew Murphy.

Second game:
Vancouver 101 000 0— 2 3 2

Larry Wedgewood 4-3 and Bull; King 4-4 and Murphy.

Strikers edge Drillers to take divisional lead

Times News Services

Teofilo Cubillas helped Fort Lauderdale move to first place in the North American Soccer League East Division Sunday when he scored in sudden-death overtime to give the Strikers a 3-2 victory over Edmonton Drillers.

Cubillas's ninth goal of the season came at 6:12 of the sudden-death period.

Gerd Mueller and Tibor Gemeri scored second-half goals for the Strikers, who trailed 1-0 at halftime. Midfielder Klauf Heinlein opened the scoring for Edmonton in the 22nd minute and forced overtime when he scored direct from a corner kick at 84:38.

Steve Long scored two goals to lead Chicago Sting to a 4-1 win over Rochester Lancers. Branko Segota scored Rochester's lone goal at 63:48.

Ron Fletcher scored the winning goal in a game filled with yellow cards against Minnesota as the Kicks edged Tulsa Roughnecks 2-1.

Alan Woodward blasted in the first goal of the game and Tulsa's only one at 12:35, which was to be the beginning of an unofficial record of three yellow cards in 27 seconds.

Lansdel's no-hitter puts Cosmos in final

Pitcher Daryn Lansdel was the hero of the piece Sunday, throwing a no-hitter and also hitting a three-run homer as Gordon Head Cosmos thrashed Esquimalt 12-0 in the final of the Greater Victoria Babe Ruth (14 and 15-year old) baseball championship at Luxton Park.

Cosmos fought back through the losers' bracket to sweep previously-unbeaten Esquimalt in two straight games.

Esquimalt looked set for the title by defeating Gordon Head 5-3 Friday night to earn a bye into Sunday's final of the double-knockout, six-team tournament.

However, Gordon Head trounced Layritz 13-5 Saturday and, with pitcher Troy Dawson hurling a three-hitter, downed Esquimalt 9-2 in the first game Sunday to force a deciding game.

Derkson standout, Stockers win four

VANCOUVER — Stockers North Americans won four out of five games here at the weekend to boost their second-place record to 13-7 in the Vancouver Senior Women's Softball League.

Debbie Derkson pitched three of the four victories.

On Sunday, Derkson threw a no-hitter as Stockers downed Labatts 4-0 and fired a five-hitter as the Victorians topped North Vancouver, 6-1.

On Saturday, Derkson picked up the win and Sandy Ferguson led the attack with three hits in three trips to the plate as Stockers nipped Labatts 3-2 while Lisa Hayton threw a two-hitter and Donna Blackstock was two-for-three and drove in the winning run as Stockers nudged North Vancouver, 2-1.

Four of the Stockers — Blackstock, Ferguson, Lori Skinner and Norma Wood — are included in the league's top 10 batters.

Stockers wind up their regular season on the Island this weekend against Nanaimo with three Saturday games in the Hub City and a doubleheader at 1 and 2:30 p.m. Sunday at Victoria's Hyacinth Park.

Golf veteran repeats feat

Riddell, who matched his age with a 78 in England last year, repeated the feat last week at Uplands, carding a 79 while playing in a foursome that included Ed Lovell, who shot his age a few years ago.

Willock B.C. cycle champion

Willock outpaced a high-class field Sunday to win the 115-mile open men's road race in four hours, 53 minutes, ahead of second-place Ron Joostema of Burnaby and the 1978 B.C. champion, Paul Tettamanti of Vancouver.

It was a gruelling race in which only 23 of the 45 starters finished. One of the casualties was Victoria's Tom Morris, the defending champion who was trying for his fifth provincial title.

A 50-mile race for veteran riders 40 and over was swept by Vancouver riders with Bas Lycett first, Roger Sumner second and Elmer Bertleson third.

World marks fall

BERLIN (AP) — A quartet of East German women set a world record of 41.85 seconds Sunday in the 400-metre relay at Potsdam, breaking the 42-second mark for the first time, the East German news agency said.

The foursome of Romy Mueller, Baerbel Woeckel, Ingrid Querswald and Marlie Goehr, competing in a National Track Association meet, bettered the mark of 42.09 set June 10, 1979, by another East German team.

MOSCOW (AP) — Tatyana Biryulina of the Soviet Union set a world record Saturday in the women's javelin with a toss of 70.08 metres (229 feet, 11 inches) at an Olympic qualification meet outside Moscow.

Officials said Biryulina, 25, set the mark in the town of Podolsk, in a meet to determine athletes who will compete for the Soviet Union at the Summer Olympic Games that open here next Saturday.

Pollard's prep pays off in win

Pollard picked up his first win of the season after skipping the first heat race and using the extra time to fine-tune his machine.

He took the lead on the 11th lap and was never headed the rest of the way.

In the 25-lap stock car main event, Dale Taylor padded his points lead with a victory after grabbing the front-running position on the 22nd lap.

AMY ALCOTT
. . . wins second U.S. Open

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Amy Alcott made the United States Open women's golf championship strictly a one-player show Sunday; shooting a one-over-par 72, a distant nine strokes ahead of two-time open winner Hollis Stacy, who finished alone in second place.

In carding a 280 on the par-71, 6,229-yard Richland Country Club course, Alcott broke the U.S. Open's 72-hole record of 284 established last year by Jerilyn Britz at Fairfield, Conn.

That earned Alcott, 24, of Santa Monica, Calif., a $25,000 bonus from Golf Magazine, plus the $20,047 winner's purse — a $45,000 payday.

Her 1980 earnings to date, without the bonus, stand at $152,304, making her the leading money winner on the Ladies Professional Golf Association circuit.

Alcott, the 1975 LPGA rookie-of-the-year, shared or held the Open lead after each round. Her 54-hole total of 208 was two strokes better than Donna Caponi-Young's record of 210 set in 1970 while on the way to her second U.S. Open's title.

In the final round, Alcott birdied the first hole, then drew-bogeys on the second and fourth to shoot a 37 on the front nine.

She birdied the par-three, 181-yard No. 12 after coming inches away from scoring a hole-in-one. She finished the round with a 72, the first time in the four-day tournament she failed to break par.

Stacy, who earned $11,347 for her second-place finish, couldn't match Alcott's aggressive, go-for-broke game and fell still another stroke behind the leader from her 54-hole deficit of eight. Stacy, from Hilton Head Island, S.C., finished the tournament with a with a 73 for a 289 total, two shots ahead of Kathy McMullen whose four-day total of 291 earned her $8,547 in third-place money. Tied for fourth, with $7,047, were Donna Caponi-Young and Judy Clark at 292.

Nancy Lopez-Melton, tied for third with Beth Daniel, and Sandra Post of Oakville, Ont., with a four-over-par 217 going into the final round, wilted badly in the 37-degree heat.

Kratzert to skip Open; prefers to be 'spoiled'

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Bill Kratzert is skipping the British Open at Muirfield, Scotland, this week.

"Why should I go if it is distasteful to me?" Kratzert said Sunday after winning the Greater Milwaukee Open.

His next tournament will be the Greater Hartford Open in two weeks. He won that event in 1977 and his victory here was his first since then, although he's won at least $100,00 in each of his four seasons on the PGA tour.

He won the Greater Milwaukee Open and $36,000 with a 22-under-par 266 on rounds of 67, 66, 67 and 66, as the pros burned up the 7,010-yard par-72 Tuckaway Country Club links.

Howard Twitty was second at 270 to earn $21,600. Grouped at 271 were Curtis Strange, George Cadle and Mark Lye.

Jim Nelford of Burnaby finished at 283, winning $454.

"It's the oldest tournament but I would rather stay here, where we are treated like kings in tournaments," Kratzert said of his decision not to play the British Open.

His only journey to the British Open was in 1978, when he missed the cut at St. Andrews.

"Over there they can't accommodate the players the way they are accustomed to. In an effort to get a grand slam, I can see going there, but otherwise no.

"Perhaps the condition of the courses over there had turned me off. Over here, we have courtesy cars driving us to the clubhouse and we stayed in hotels that are close by. That's not true over there — not that we are treated badly — I guess we are just spoiled over here."

Nina Bland loses in second round

MONTREAL (CP) — After two days and 30 gruelling matches, four players survived qualifying competition and advanced to first-round action today in the Player's Challenge women's professional tennis tournament at Jarry Park.

Japan's Sonoe Yonezawa, Ana Maria Fernandez of Torrance, Calif., Adriana Villagrana of Buenos Aires and Jodi Appelbaum of Miami Beach will now bid for the $100,000 tournament's top prize of $20,000.

Three Canadians were in a group of 16 that began second-round qualifying play Sunday but were quickly disposed of by Americans.

Nina Bland of Victoria, ranked third in Canada, lost to Fernandez 6-2, 7-6, losing the second-set tie-breaker 1-7. On Saturday, Bland ousted Phyllis Blackwell of Mobile, Ala., 6-3, 6-2.

Montreal's Chantal Racicot, 10th-ranked in Canada, won her first set 6-3 and then lost 6-0 6-1 to Joyce Portman of Surfside, Fla.

Toronto's Sue Black was no match for Elise Burgin of Baltimore, Md., who won 6-1, 6-4.

The Smiths make a winning combo

PORTLAND — A husband and wife set the pace among five Victoria Motor Sport Club members competing Sunday in the International Conference of Sports Car Clubs race at Portland International Raceway.

Frank Smith drove his Mini-Cooper "S" to a first over-all and a first in the "F" sports racing class in one race and picked up another victory in the "D" improved sedan class in another race.

Rick Okell, another member of the VMSC contingent, was fourth in "E" production sports cars and fourth in "E" improved production sports cars.

There was a total 195 entries in the event.

Port Alberni pitchers hot

Port Alberni A's and Labatts each picked up two victories Sunday during play in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League.

A's trampled Seaspray Properties 12-0 and romped to a 5-0 decision over Tod Hackett Construction at Central Park while Labatts swept a doubleheader against Juan de Fuca at Sooke, 5-2 and 2-0.

In other Central games, Tod Hackett tripped Port Angeles Budweiser 3-1 but the American club bounced back to down Seaspray 7-4 and Ingraham Rodeway Inn edged Tally-Ho, 1-0.

Port Alberi pitching dominated their games. Loren Smith hurled a two-hitter to lead the victory over Seaspray, striking out 11 and yielding only one walk, while his clubmates came up with 14 hits.

Bill Polz held Tod Hackett to four hits in the other Port Alberni victory, striking out six and giving up one base on balls.

At Hyacinth Park, Bemister's Welding consolidated a hold on second place and moved to within one point of first-ranked Island Dryco Breakers by winning two Victoria-Saanich Senior Women's League games.

Marilyn Bolton picked up both pitching victories, throwing a one-hitter as Bemister's pounded Vidalin Construction 10-0 and allowing only four hits as Bemister downed Butler Bros., 3-1.

Home run power was evident in two Heywood Men's League doubleheaders at Heywood Avenue Park.

Ashley Douglas hit two round-trippers, one a solo effort and the other a two-run blast, and clubmate Jim Tarbuck hammered a solo homer as Strathcona Hotel downed Remco Office Systems 4-1 while solos by Tarbuck and Peter Lawson and a two-run blow by Fred Henson helped Strathcona to a 9-6 win.

Rod Barnes his a two-run homer in the seventh inning to lead Knowles Realty to a 4-2 decision over Victoria Athletics, who collected a solo blast from Ryan Talbot. Athletics defeated Knowles 3-2 in the other game.

Children the happiest as stars top Canucks

It was the children who emerged as the real winners Saturday.

Both the children on hand to collect autographs and the ones at George Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children.

Heywood Men's Softball League All-Stars edged Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey Leagye 14-13 in an exhibition game before around 1,000 fans at Royal Athletic Park.

Before the game, Canuck players paid a visit to the Pearkes Clinic, which received 60 per cent of the gate receipts and half of the draw proceeds.

Midget champs

KELOWNA (CP) — Richmond Skunks, undefeated in seven games, won the two-day, double-loss provincial midget girls' softball championship Sunday, beating Coquitlam Cardinals 12-0 in the final.

Jones takes British Prix to boost world points lead

BRANDS HATCH, England (AP) — Australian Alan Jones, in a Williams, won the British Grand Prix auto race Sunday to increase his lead in the 1980 World Drivers' Championship.

Second after a race-long chase, and six championship points behind, was Nelson Piquet of Brazil, followed by the second Williams of Argentina's Carlos Reutemann. Jones has 37 points in the World Drivers championship, Piquet 31 and Didier Pironi of France 23.

It was Jones's third straight victory, after Spain and France, but the Spanish race was declared illegal by the world sanctioning body — a decision Jones bitterly contests. He said Sunday, "It will be made legal and I will get another nine points."

But another blowout forced him to retire 13 laps from the end of the 76-lap event.

Jones, clearly unable to match the pace of the Ligiers in the opening laps, took the lead on lap 31 when Pironi pitted. He never was challenged, and finished the race in one hour and 34 minutes, 49.228 seconds at an average speed of 125.690 miles an hour.

Pironi's lap record was set on No. 54 in 1:12.37, at an average 130.02 m.p.h.

American Mario Andretti moved his Lotus to fifth as the leaders dropped out, but was forced out in turn with a seized gearbox.

For Ferrari, Gilles Villeneuve of Berthierville, Que., fought hard as usual, but pitted repeatedly with ignition and aerod-dynamic skirt problems and wound up 19th.

1. Alan Jones, Australia, Williams, 1 hour 34 minutes 49.228 seconds, average speed 125.690 m.p.h.

3. Carlos Reutemann, Argentina, Williams, 1:35.02.513

5. Jean-Pierre Jarrier, France, Tyrrell, one lap

Champ rallies to keep crown

McAFEE, N.J. (AP) — Matthew Saad Muhammad, summoning strength from within, stopped challenger Yaqui Lopez in the 14th round after knocking him down four times to retain his World Boxing Council light heavyweight championship Sunday.

Muhammad, making his fourth title defense, sent Lopez to the canvas for the second time with a right hand that had the challenger dazed. Lopez shook his head and once again got up at the count of eight, but another right knocked him down for the third time 30 seconds later.

Lopez got up this time at the count of three, but a quick right hand by Muhammad sent him back down and referee Waldemar Schmidt of Puerto Rico rushed in to stop the fight at 2:03 of the 14th round.

Going into the 14th round, Muhammad had put on quite a comeback after it looked like Lopez finally had reached his goal of attaining the championship that has proved so elusive.

Soggy pitch disrupts test

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — Because of a waterlogged pitch, there was no play Saturday in the third cricket test match between England and the West Indies at Old Trafford.

The West Indies was at 219 for seven, compared with England's first-innings total of 150, when play resumed today.

First road race victory

LEXINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Johnny Rutherford, who took the lead with 19 laps remaining when Rick Mears spun off the course, pulled away from Gordon Johncock to win the Mid-Ohio 250 championship car race Sunday.

Rutherford, who never before had won a road race, came across the finish line 23.07 seconds ahead of Johncock. Bill Alsup was third, one lap down, while Roger Mears — Rick's older brother — finished fourth, two laps behind, and Australian Vern Schuppan came in fifth, four laps down.

It was the third victory of the season for the Rutherford, who dominated the champ car division early in the year in his bright yellow Chaparral. He averaged 139.37 kilometres an hour for the 250-kilometre race.

Petty collapses in heat

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt had Cale Yarborough on his back bumper for the final 30 laps but held on Saturday night to win the blistering Nashville 420 Grand National stock car race.

Benny Parsons was third, with Darrell Waltrip fourth and Richard Petty fifth in the $95,500 race in front of 16,000 at Nashville International Raceway.

The drivers had to work in 38-degree heat, with Petty collapsing on the 347th lap and Harry Gant taking his place. Gant earlier drove in relief for Don Sprouse until his car experienced engine trouble. Gant said the temperature in Petty's car was 66 degrees.

The NASCAR points leader earned $14,600, while Yarborough got $10,160. Allison finished sixth. Sterling Marlin was seventh and Jody Ridley eighth.

Hope retains boxing crown

LONDON (AP) — Maurice Hope of Britain retained his World Boxing Council super welterweight title by stopping former champion Rocky Mattioli of Italy in the 11th round at Wembley Conference Centre on Saturday night. Antigua-born Hope was making his second defence of the title which he won from Mattioli in San Remo, Italy, 16 months ago.

Hope, inactive for 10 months after undergoing an eye operation, started slowly but bombarded Mattioli from the eighth round on.

Hope, 26, now is set for a lucrative meeting with WBC welterweight champion Roberto Duran of Panama. American promoter Don King had offered the winner of Saturday's fight a $2-million contract to fight Duran.

Mattioli, born in Italy but brought up in Australia, previously had been stopped only twice in more than 60 professional contests.

Hope, winner of all but two of his 32 professional fights, became the third Briton to retain a world title in the space of five weeks.

Jim Watt retained the WBC lightweight title against American Howard Davis in Glasgow and Alan Minter kept his undisputed middleweight title by halting Vito Antuofermo two weeks ago.

Niatross early choice in Meadowlands Pace

By The Associated Press

Slapstick, Seahawk Hanover and Bo Bo won the three divisions of the $375,500 Sheppard Pace for two-year-olds at Yonkers Raceway Saturday to establish themselves as favories for the $2 million Woodrow Wilson at the Meadowlands in August.

Slapstick, unbeaten in five starts, posted a six-length victory over Great Ore, and was timed in 2:01. The fastest Sheppard division was won by Seahawk Hanover, $4.60, who was clocked in 2:00 4-5.

Last year's top two-year-old, Niatross, was installed as the 3-5 early favorite for the $1,011,000 Meadowlands Pace Friday night. The colt, which has been syndicated for $8 million, barely qualified after finishing fourth in his trial heat last Friday night, won by Bruce Gimble in 1:54 4-5. Niatross broke shortly after pacing the first quarter in 27 seconds, but recovered in time to qualify.

Niatross drew post No. 8 for the Meadowlands Pace, harness racing's first million-dollar plus race. Second-choice in the early betting at 6-5 was the entry of Tyler B (post No. 1), Storm Damage (post No. 5) and Bruce Gimble (post No. 6).

Graham eyes California for record-setting pacer

By BILL WALKER

With a British Columbia standardbred pacing record in the book, the questions for Michaels Glory now are two-fold.

How fast can he go and how far can he go?

Michaels Glory, a four-year old bay horse driven by joint owner and trainer Rick Graham, Saturday became the first standardbred to pace faster than two minutes for the mile in B.C. by covering the distance in 1:58.4.

This was 1 3/5 seconds faster than Michaels Glory had run at Sandown the previous week in setting a then new mark of 2:00.2.

"He's a dream," said Graham. "I just tapped him once and he took off", he added of the relatively easy victory he had scored in a field of five including Over Burden, the acknowledged Western Canada champion and record holder of 1:57.1.

"He's still learning, but he's improving all the time," Graham said of Michaels Glory. "He was having a litle trouble with the turns earlier this year," he explained. "But here, he has been just perfect."

Plans for Michaels Glory now include two stakes at Calgary next month and then a foray to Hollywood Park "to see how good he really is," said Graham.

"It's hard to say how fast he'll go," Graham added. "But he does have the potential to be a really top horse."

It was the eighth straight victory for Michaels Glory which returned $4.30, $2.10, $2.10.

In 20 starts this year he has finished first 15 times ("I was disqualified once from first to fourth," said Graham), second twice, third twice and fourth twice. Last year he won his only start.

Graham is a one-fourth owner of Michaels Glory along with B. Ashcroft while Ken Martin is a half owner. A Kentucky bred, Michaels Glory was purchased by Graham from his father for $35,000. Martin purchased his half-interest from Graham for $25,000 U.S. funds.

In the race, Over Burden went to the lead on the break and ripped off some fast fractions, :28.4 at the quarter and :59.4 at the half at which point Michaels Glory took over.

He hit the three-quarter pole at 1:28 and it is believed that all five horses in the race — Over Burden (2), Baron Nuff (3), Billy Barker (4) and Magnus Almahurst (5) cracked the two-minute barrier.

Two betting marks were also set. The 1,925 fans wagered $30,339 on the 10th race, $27,558 of which was bet on the triactor.

The mutuel total was $157,157 and the triactor of Irish Stadt, Senga Suntan and Outasight Swede returned $145.80.

The 10-year old brown gelding Rays Golden Patch has his unbeaten streak stopped at seven when he stepped up but couldn't handle $3,500 company in the third.

Tidal wave scale fills science gap

By AB KENT

MURTY
. . . devises measurement

A new scale for measuring the force of tsunami waves has been developed through the work of Victoria scientist Dr. Tad Murty of the Institute of Ocean Sciences.

Applying Murty's calculations, the 1964 Alaska earthquake which sent a destructive tidal wave up Alberni Inlet had a magnitude of 9.6, making it one of the world's strongest tsunamis.

A numerical scale of -4 to 10 covers the range of foreseeable tsunamis and is consistent with known tsunami waves as far back as it is possible to measure with reasonable accuracy.

The Murty-Loomis scale has been accepted unofficially by major countries of the tsunami-prone Pacific rim — with the exception of the U.S. where some sources have been critical.

According to Murty, some American scientists feel the new scale is not satisfactory from a mathematical standpoint. But those who would adopt it say the Murty-Loomis scale is a practical measure based on the energy released by an earth movement transmitted into an ocean wave.

Research on tsunamis lags considerably behind earthquake studies and Murty is one of few scientists doing it. A colleague at IOS, Dr. Faulkner Henry, said the work being done could be likened to postmortem investigation.

By contrast, earth scientists working on quakes have nearly reached the point of being able to predict their occurrence.

Up to 1942 there was no scale of measurement for tsunamis. That year Japanese scientists came up with an indicator based on descriptive information such as wave height and the amount of damage in a local area.

By 1949 the system had evolved into the Imamura-Iida magnitude scale, to which the Russian Soloviev in 1965 added landslide information and negative values.

But the International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics suggested in 1970 that this was a scale of intensity rather than a measure of magnitude.

A more objective form of the Imamura-Iida scale was proposed by a scientist at the California Institute of Technology in April of last year, about the time Murty was invited by Loomis to visit the institute for marine and atmospheric research in Hawaii, where Loomis is employed by NOAA.

Murty spent six weeks there in which "both of us felt the only objective way to go about it is to build up a scale based on energy" at the time of generation at the source.

"The potential energy (of a tsunami) could be shown quite reasonably by the total energy of an earthquake if the average area and height of elevation of the ocean bottom was known."

For example, if an area of the ocean floor measuring 450 km square heaved 10 m the energy produced could be expressed and given a scale value of M10.

Murty suggests that is the top limit for practical purposes. Anything of greater magnitude would be of cataclysmic proportion.

The scale works down from there: M8, for example, represents the energy from a seabottom movement about one-third as great, but still a "major" tsunami event.

Dropping another two-thirds would produce a "significant" event, or M6.

Continuing down the scale to magnitude 0 would represent an observable trans-oceanic tstunami. The lower limit of M-4 would be the least practical indicator.

Going back over 200 recorded tsunamis of the last 165 years, Loomis and Murty came up with a list of 24 "tsunamigenic" earthquakes, that is having a magnitude of 8.4 or better by their calculations.

Six of them, including two of the three biggest, originated in Chile; six in Japan, and four in the Alaska-Aleutian Islands region.

The worst known tsunami event, according to the Murty-Loomis scale, was M9.9 in Chile in 1960. Previous to that, April 1, 1946, was a 9.8 event in the Aleutians.

Murty got little response from the scientific community until the December meeting of IUGG in Canberra, where his proposal was better received.

Australia, Russia and Japan seem happy with the scale, Murty said. The International Tsunami Information Centre in Hawaii would like to start using it, he said, but the blessing of NOAA must be given first.

Jerusalem question boils over

By The Associated Press

The Egyptian and Israeli delegates clashed over the status of Jerusalem at the resumption of the Palestinian autonomy talks in Cairo.

The Israeli delegate, Justice Minister Shmuel Tamir, told a news conference Sunday there is no question that Jerusalem is the capital of Israel.

"Since 1967, it is very clear that Jerusalem is a unified city, the capital of Israel, within Israeli sovereignty, and this is the law today without any addition," Tamir told a reporter who questioned him about the status of a bill before the Israeli parliament that would proclaim Jerusalem the indivisible capital of Israel.

Egypt's delegate, the minister of state for foreign affairs, Butros Ghali, responded: "This is not our position. Our position is quite clear, and was expressed in an exchange of letters with the United States and we received a positive answer from the United States concerning the problem of Jerusalem."

The United States has refused to recognize Jerusalem as Israel's capital and maintains its embassy in Tel Aviv.

Egypt regards Arab East Jerusalem, site of one of Islam's holiest mosques, as part of the occupied West Bank of the Jordan and wants full autonomy for its residents. Israel wants continued full control over Jerusalem, and says autonomy for the Arabs living in the occupied territories should be limited to administrative powers only.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat suspended the autonomy talks in May to protest what he called the "dismal political atmosphere" among the 1.2 million Palestinians on the West Bank, and Israel's plan to annex Arab East Jerusalem. Both were seized in the 1967 war.

An Islamic foreign ministers' conference ended in Amman, Jordan, Sunday with condemnation of Israel for not complying with UN resolutions calling for withdrawal from occupied Arab territory, and a call for UN sanctions against the Jewish state.

The Israeli government has introduced a bill banning the singing of Palestine Liberation Organization anthems, wearing T-shirts praising the PLO, or waving PLO flags in public.

Islamics seeking Israeli sanction

AMMAN (AP) — Islamic foreign ministers Sunday called for United Nations sanctions against Israel and threatened to expand the Arab economic boycott against Israel and its supporters to a pan-Islamic boycott.

Delegates from 39 Islamic countries and the Palestine Liberation Organization concluded a meeting of the Islamic Conference with a series of resolutions and a pledge to press for sanctions against Israel at the General Assembly session that opens July 22.

The Assembly cannot impose sanctions. Such measures could only be taken by the Security Council, where they likely would face a U.S. veto.

The meeting went into an unexpected third day when the Iranian delegate, Ali Shams, insisted on discussion of his proposal that the Islamic states withdraw funds and halt crude oil shipments to countries that support Israel, including Egypt. That proposal already has been rejected during an earlier meeting of the conference screening committee.

Begin back from hospital

The 66-year-old prime minister said he will combine rest and work at home for the next two weeks at his doctors' orders.

Two years cleanup yet for Three Mile Island

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Engineers at the crippled Three Mile Island nuclear plant say they won't get to the hardest part of the cleanup, removal of the radioactive reactor core, for at least two more years.

Recovery chief Robert Arnold says that's how long it will take to decontaminate 700,000 gallons of radioactive water and "millions of square feet" of surface area.

"Decontamination of the containment building will take until late 1982," Arnold said. "Then we'll need the balance of 1982 and 1983 for fuel removal."

Radioactive gas escaped into the reactor-containment building during a nuclear accident almost 16 months ago, and was released into the atmosphere in a two-week purge that ended Friday.

But the building still is flooded with radioactive water that spilled during the worst accident to occur at a commercial reactor in the United States.

Arnold, a senior vice-president of Metropolitan Edison Co., the plant operator, said the utility plans three or four manned entries of the containment building within the next three months.

Meanwhile, U.S. utilities and the nuclear industry have acknowledged that hundreds of unexpected incidents, including operator and equipment failures, occur each year at nuclear power plants. But they deny allegations by an anti-nuclear group that these events raise new safety concerns.

Critical Mass, an anti-nuclear group affiliated with Ralph Nader, released a report Sunday saying more than 2,300 such incidents were reported to the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission in 1979. A plant in Virginia had 130 incidents and another in Ohio 109.

"This data speaks volumes about mismanagement, poor operator training, lax inspection and frequent mechanical breakdowns," said Critical Mass director Richard Pollock. "It is a profile of an industry rushing headlong toward another Three Mile Island."

Industry spokesmen confirmed the 2,300 figure was essentially correct, but said the most were not of a dangerous nature.

Band members drop like flies

HOLLINGWELL, England (AP) — Authorities say they have no clues yet to the mysterious illness that caused about 500 children and a dozen adults to "drop like flies" at a carnival. Seven children were still in hospital today but none were reported in serious condition.

Health officials said the adults and children, between seven and 15 and many in uniforms for a jazz band competition, inhaled fumes of some kind at the carnival grounds Sunday in this English Midlands town. But they said they had no inkling of what caused the fumes.

Iran papers pushing for spy trials

The Associated Press

Tehran newspapers are keeping up a campaign to mobilize support for punishment of the U.S. hostages, with the third newspaper in six days reporting that most members of parliament favor spy trials for the captives.

Hojatoleslam Hassani, a leader of the Islamic Republican party that dominates the new Majlis, or parliament, said 99 per cent of the deputies think the 52 Americans should be tried as spies unless Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and his fortune are returned to Iran, the revolutionary guards' newspaper, Payam Enghlab, reported Sunday.

The newspaper quoted Aazam Taleghani, one of the two women in the Majlis, as saying the Americans, for whom today is their 254th day in captivity, should be tried before an international court of judges.

"When their espionage crimes are proved, we ask the nation to free, imprison or execute them," she said.

Hassani also said the Majlis should not debate the hostage issue "for two months because (President) Carter tries to be re-elected by releasing the spies." The Tehran newspaper Donya Iran reported recently that the Majlis will not open its debate on the fate of the hostages before October.

On Tuesday, the Tehran newspaper Ettelat reported interviewing 23 members of parliament, and said many of them want the hostages tried as spies. Another Tehran newspaper, Kayhan, had a similar report the next day.

The hostage released last week because he was ill, Richard Queen, 28, was being examined at the U.S. Air Force Hospital in Wiesbaden, West Germany, and U.S. officials said he will remain there for several more days. He is believed suffering from a neurological disorder that caused dizziness and stiffness on his left side.

Queen's parents took him in a wheelchair Sunday to the base post exchange where he got a suit, a shirt and a pair of shoes for his trip back to the United States. His father, Harold Queen, said the young man was "in very good spirits; he's looking better every day."

Meanwhile, Tehran Radio reported nine more executions and the trial of three West Germans. Broadcasts said:

Lt.-Gen. Houshang Hatam, deputy commander of the joint chiefs of staff for a time during the last year of the shah's reign; Kiomars Rajabian, an officer of the shah's Imperial Guard, and six "well-known drug traffickers" convicted by Ayatollah Sadegh Khalkhali's anti-narcotics court were executed in Tehran.

A police officer was executed in Isfahan.

Three West Germans went on trial in Tehran on charges of drug trafficking and carrying arms. They were arrested in Tabas, 300 kilometres east of Tehran, shortly after the U.S. commando force landed in the desert near there on April 25 in the unsuccessful attempt to rescue the hostages. The Germans said they had come from Pakistan March 11 and were carrying weapons to defend themselves.

Women debate Israel

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Egypt is against any policy of extremism and equally against any commitment by any country to destroy the state of Israel, the wife of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said today.

Jivah el Sadat made the comment at the 18-day UN-sponsored World Conference on Women.

Leila Khaled of the PLO said it was not possible to "respond to the occupation of one's land and to violence and terror against one's people with peace?"

The Israeli delegation to the conference, led by Hava Haveli, Israel's ambassador to Norway, was preparing a rebuttal to criticism of treatment of Palestinian women.

Soviet bomb raids 'killing thousands'

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Soviet forces in Afghanistan have begun saturation bombing raids on more than 50 Afghan villages killing and wounding "thousands and thousands" of people, a diplomatic source said today.

The heavy Soviet bombings by MiG fighters and helicopter gunships in villages "all over the place" has reduced villages to smoldering rubble during the past 10 days, he said.

The Soviets attacked "50 to 60 villages" in the provinces of Kabul, Bamiyan, Paktia and Gazni.

The Russians previously hit villages in the vicinity of the scene of rebel ambushes in the hope of knocking out guerrilla hideouts and storage houses.

The recent bombings, however, have spread out and some diplomats in Kabul believe the Soviets now are trying to intimidate guerrillas with their massive fire power.

Rebel activities, however, appeared not to have diminished. An Afghan who travelled from Kabul to Pakistan last week said knocked out Soviet military vehicles lined a major highway linking Kabul with Jalalabad.

He also said the convoy in which he traveled was hit by land mines and rebel attacks last Thursday, killing one person and injuring four.

The survivor, an Afghan traveller, said the convoy of hundreds of buses, jeeps, cars and trucks carrying people and supplies started off on the journey from Kabul to Jalalabad and then Pakistan last Thursday.

Two armored personnel carriers — one Soviet and one Afghan — initially escorted the convoy, he said.

Moslem rebels started firing machine guns and the convoy was forced to stop about 15 miles east of Kabul in the Mahipar Pass.

Opening lead — five of spades.

Consider this deal from the 1978 world championship match between the Canadian and Philippine teams of four. At the first table, with Sammy Kehela and Eric Murray North-South for Canada, the bidding went as shown. Certainly six clubs was a good contract, but it would have failed had West led a diamond. Actually, though, West led a spade and Murray now had to play the hand correctly to make the slam.

He won the spade lead with the ace and next cashed the A-K of trumps, learning in the process that West had a sure trump trick coming to him. Murray then had to decide whether to lead his spades or his hearts in an effort to salvage his diamond loser. As usual, he guessed correctly. He played four rounds of hearts and discarded a diamond from his hand to bring home the slam. His only loser was a trump trick.

The bidding at the second table, with a Philippine pair North-South, surprisingly went:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	2 ◇	3 ◇	5 ♣
Pass	Pass!	5 ♡	6 ◇
7 ♣!	Pass	Pass	7 ◇
Pass	Pass	Dble

Apparently the Canadian East was afraid that South would make the grand slam because West had failed to double seven clubs. He therefore raised partner to seven diamonds, intending it as a sacrifice bid. This did not turn out well when West went down four — 700 points — in a situation where the Philippine declarer would have gone down either one or two tricks in seven clubs.

Sam seemed to be digging up his square tiled patio when I dropped in for a visit yesterday. "No, only making it smaller," he told me. "I'm removing the outer tile all the way around. In all that's one tile less than the total that will remain."

The tiles were square and all the same size, so I was able to figure out how many were being removed. You try.

Reagan running mate only convention issue

DETROIT (CP) — Conservative forces who have shaped the Republican party's drive for national political power were challenged during the weekend by moderates trying to influence Ronald Reagan's choice of a vice-presidential running mate.

But as Reagan left his secluded California ranch to accept the Republicans' nomination to run as president next November, he insisted his choice of a No. 2 man remains open.

On the eve of the convention that opens today, former president Gerald Ford strongly urged a vice-presidential pick to counter the hard-line label that Reagan and the platform he will present in the fall campaign for the White House will inevitably carry.

In a televised interview Sunday, Ford said he will meet Reagan on Tuesday to suggest that the vice-presidential nominee must be someone "who would broaden the base, who would heal any differences" and who would have more experience in Washington than does ex-California governor Reagan.

Ford, president from 1974 to 1976 and recognized as a moderate influence, clearly reflected concern among many party members that the ultra-conservative platform approved in Detroit last week by a 106-member committee will alienate many moderate voters.

Ford singled out two issues — softening of support for an equal rights amendment to protect women's rights and advocating an amendment to outlaw abortion — that Reagan has publicly approved.

"Those two issues will not gain any votes, they will lose votes," predicted Ford, who is to address the convention today.

But even as indications grew that many of the 1,994 delegates here prefer a balancing political moderate to Reagan as a vice-presidential choice, conservative forces raised the stakes by warning of a possible floor fight if Reagan heeds their wishes.

Supporters of conservative North Carolina Senator Jesse Helms warned that if Reagan picks a moderate, such as former CIA director George Bush who was runner-up to Reagan for the nomination, they will counter by putting Helms's name forward, which would guarantee a battle.

Republican organizers, still vividly recalling their experience of 1964 when a right-wing platform presented by presidential candidate Barry Goldwater and his Republicans was crushed by Lyndon Johnson and the Democrats, desperately want to avoid any appearance of being split this time.

Alaska plane crash kills eight

NOME, Alaska (AP) — Eight people were killed when a twin-engined aircraft crashed about 17 kilometres southeast of Golovin on the Seward peninsula, Alaska state troopers reported Sunday.

Troopers identified three of the victims as pilot Lee Eckels, 34, of Unalakleet; Garrett Aukon, 30, of Nome; and Diana Gardinier, age unknown, also of Nome.

Names of the other five victims have not been released, pending notification of next of kin, troopers said.

Troopers said it was reported overdue at 1:20 a.m. Sunday and a search was begun.

Jobless woes, heat to blame in racial clash

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — High temperatures, the slaying of a black teenager and 25-per-cent unemployment combined to cause a violent clash between police and hundreds of residents of a predominantly black neighborhood here, black leaders say.

The clash came after the fatal shooting Tuesday of William Taylor, 15, killed by police as he allegedly fled the scene of a house burglary.

On Saturday, detectives investigating a double homicide at the Disco 96 nightclub drew a crowd of 500 people. Some pelted police with rocks and bottles, injuring two policemen before the crowd was dispersed.

Mel Brannon, president of the Flint Urban League, said the shooting of Taylor was "the straw that broke the camel's back" in a city plagued with high unemployment, mostly from layoffs at General Motors Corp., the city's major employer.

"We have the highest unemployment rate in the nation, the temperature's been hot, there's a feeling of hopelessness and despair as far as the general economic situation — add those up and you get a situation that's volatile," Brannon said.

"There has always been the underlying attitude in the black community that if you're white and have money, you get justice, and if you're poor and black you don't."

Sgt. Robert Aguirre agreed that tensions have increased since white policeman Gerald Collins shot Taylor. Some witnesses contended Taylor had stopped on Collins's order, contradicting police reports.

That shooting is being investigated by the department and by Flint Ombudsman Joe Dupcza, said Mayor James Rutherford. Collins has been suspended pending the outcome of the investigation.

The outburst at the nightclub flared after detectives arrived to investigate the apparent robbery-related slaying of Mary Washington, 30, and Joan Myers, 21.

One more alien smuggler arrested

United Press International

Another possible member of the alien smuggling ring that led 13 Salvadoran aliens to their deaths in the heat of the Arizona desert last week has been arrested.

Border Patrol agents reported the weekend arrest of Santos Elias Flores, 22, of San Salvador, El Salvador. He was arrested in Yuma and charged with alien smuggling.

Border Patrol agents said Flores is believed to be part of the Las Munecas (The Dolls) gang that allegedly smuggled a group of middle class Salvadorans into Arizona after advertising as a travel agency in a Salvadoran newspaper.

Fourteen of the group were rescued from the Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument July 4, 5 and 6. At first it was thought the smugglers had robbed the aliens and left them to die in the desert.

But two of the survivors are alleged smugglers, Nunez Guardado and Preciado, and one of the dead was also a ring member. Authorities now say there is no evidence the guides abandoned the Salvadorans as had earlier been thought.

Jordan Herst of Forest Hill collegiate in Toronto and Azad Abdollah of W.D. Lowe secondary school in Windsor stunned Ontario education ministry officials this week by scoring 100-per-cent marks in all six of their mandatory Grade 13 subjects.

"In the 20 years I've been checking the lists submitted by high schools, we've never had any with six 100 marks," said George Mills, a ministry official. "It's an amazing accomplishment."

The highest previous mark for final exams in Ontario was 99.8 per cent.

Detectives investigating the bizarre murder of a 38-year-old divorcee in Melbourne, Australia, say they have found a postcard and letter to her from American television star David Birney.

Birney

Birney, who was said to have written that he was feeling "a bit crazed and disillusioned," signed off once with 14 kisses. Investigators also said that the woman had an autographed photo from Birney, star of Serpico, in addition to a dozen Elvis Presley posters, a framed picture and more than 50 of his albums.

Birney could not be reached for comment and his agent said the actor was on vacation.

The body of Mrs. James, who owned a suburban bookshop, was found in her bedroom June 17. She was stabbed 68 times in what police have described as a weird sex torture ritual.

Raymond Paquette found this out in his Ottawa home this week when a yearling whitetail doe crashed through the living room window of his townhouse and, suffering from several cuts, rampaged in terror throught the room, demolishing several tables, lamps and chairs.

The Ontario Housing Authority, which manages the development, will fix the window, but Paquette's insurance company says there is nothing in his policy about deer damage. So he's on his own replacing furniture and cleaning the blood-stained rug.

The deer, although severely cut, will survive. It was captured by provincial game officials and returned to a provincial park.

Dear Abby:

I recently read that an elderly San Francisco widow died, leaving instructions in her will that Sido, her pet 10-year-old collie, be destroyed as soon as possible. She feared that her beloved pet would not have a good life after her death.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals intervened in an effort to save Sido's life, and now there's a big court battle going on. Because of the publicity, hundreds of people have offered to give Sido a good home. However, the law states that animals are "property," and as such, the owner of said property has a right to decide its fate.

Observer

Dear Observer:

I'm for preserving Sido's life. This is another example clearly showing that what is legal is not always moral. And if the law gives an animal owner the right to destroy a healthy pet, then the law should be changed.

P.S. You'll be glad to hear that Sido's life has been saved.

Dear Abby:

A buddy of mine from work came by the house to pick me up for a weekend fishing trip. When I introduced him to my wife, his eyes lit up, and he said, "You've got to be crazy to leave a swell-looking dame like that alone for the weekend." Was I?

Weekend Fisherman

Dear Fisherman:

He could be right. The next time you go fishing, be sure to take that buddy with you.

Dear Abby:

This summer my son, who is a Boy Scout, wants to go on a "family camping trip" sponsored by the Boy Scouts. He has asked his mother and me and his three sisters to go with him.

His mother and I are divorced, but we get along fairly well. Perhaps I should point out that we are nothing more than "friends" now.

I have been dating a very nice woman, and she doesn't think it's right for me to go on this family camping trip.

Confused

Dear Confused:

I think if you felt comfortable turning down your son in favor of accommodating your ladyfriend, you wouldn't have written to me. Follow your hunch and make your Boy Scout happy.

Dear Abby:

I would like to thank you for your explanation as to why the ERA is a national need.

May I add that the 19th Amendment guaranteeing women the vote became part of the Constitution in 1920. Louisiana did not ratify it until 1970, and Mississippi has never ratified it. In Mississippi it is introduced annually and annually voted down.

Louisiana ratified in response to a request from the League of Women Voters asking the state to honor the 50th anniversary of women's suffrage. Thus Louisiana and Mississippi women have been able to take part in the democratic process for the past 50 and 60 years.

An energetic people proves its worth

A while ago I told you about the deserted Indian villages of the Up Coast, which sit rotting in the sun and the rain with their memories of past occupation. Some of them are rooted deep enough in time to have gathered unto themselves a skein of myths. There was the Village of the Angry Ones, for instance, and the Village of the Wolves, and the village founded by a world-roving killer whale who came ashore in human form.

The folk who populated those villages until comparatively recent years were proud, shrewd and energetic. Traders and colonizers, they ventured out in their long canoes from Fort Rupert, the heartland of the Kwakiutl Nation to which their bands belonged. They had a genius for building and decorating; in the old villages you will still find a totem or two, finely carved but ravaged by weather, and the massive roof-beams of fallen houses.

A question arises. Where did the inhabitants of those once-flourishing villages go when economic necessity forced them to tear up their roots?

Unlike various other ousted populations, they did not simply wander off to become lost without trace. Alert Bay received many of them, to that fishing community's distinct enrichment. Port Hardy and Port MacNeil on North Vancouver Island attracted others. But a majority established new homes in the Campbell River-Quadra Island area, where they or their children contribute to a thriving Kwakiutl establishment.

Energy and enterprise are still among their dominant characteristics. Very many are fishermen (doggedly sweating out a disastrously poor season!) and among these, the percentage of competent and prosperous skipper-owners runs high.

The Cape Mudge museum in the model Kwakiutl village on Quadra Island has been an accomplished fact for over a year. Its handsome collection of artifacts draws many visitors.

Thunderbird Hall, a fine new Kwakiutl community centre, has been built on reserve land by the Cape Mudge-Campbell River bands. A week or two ago, the Cape Mudge dance society presented a unique program of cotume dances, including the lovely and elaborate Dance of the Animal Kingdom.

Earlier this month, a gloom-crier in Victoria was bemoaning the decline of British Columbia native languages. In 10 years, he predicted, the Indian tongues will be entirely lost. From heartening evidence to hand, I'm inclined to doubt that this will be the case among the Kwakiutl, Kwakwala, the language of the bands, is enjoying a vigorous current revival.

Last winter and spring, North Island College offered adult courses in the language. I understand these courses will be resumed next fall. Better still, our Campbell River School Board in its wisdom has introduced Kwakwala into its Central Elementary curriculum. This year, all 190 students have been given a taste of the language by a university-trained Kwakiutl teacher.

The effect of the instruction has more significance than the mere fact that those of us who took a course can now greet Indian friends with a "Yo! Wixas?" (Hello, how are you?) It has encouraged many Kawkiutl girls and boys to adventure into their own language without fear of their reception.

Last but not least, I suspect that the infusion of new blood from the northern bands has helped ginger the renaissance of Kawkiutl art which is manifesting itself in a vertiable sunburst of carving, silversmithing, basketry, weaving and painting. The quality is high: individual artists are making names for themselves.

Perhaps the ultimate mark of Kwakiutl vindication was the dropping by Ottawa of its annimus against the potlatch — the ritual gift-giving which was the mainstay of the social order.

That fight had its heroes and its martyrs. Chief James Sewid pounded Ottawa until he obtained the return of at least a portion of the masks and artifacts seized by the federal government as potlatch regalia. Dan Cramner served six months in jail for giving a forbidden potlatch. Ironically, Dan's daughter, Gloria, is now curator of the Alert Bay museum in which many of those restored potlatch treasures will be displayed.

So while many a Kwakiutl retains wistful memories of the Up-Coast village which was once his world, life hasn't gone too badly for those villagers who drifted south to become part of the larger communities. They have proved their worth, and won their neighbor's respect.

This pianist made the grade

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Robin McCabe in concert tonight at the McPherson

What does it take to become a successful concert artist — someone like pianist Robin McCabe, who is one of the most popular and admired stars of the about-to-be-launched 1980 edition of the Victoria International Festival.

Pianist's Progress, a book published a few months ago by Thomas Y. Crowell in New York, (Fitzhenry and Whiteside $11.75) explores the subject from a close-up viewpoint and in doing so makes fascinating reading.

It will have more than ordinary local interest because its central figure is Robin McCabe. The author, Helen Drees Ruttencutter, is an editor and contributing writer for The New Yorker.

There are numerous references to several other artists familiar to International Festival audiences — Joseph Bloch, Mitchell Andrews, Ruggiero Ricci, Bela Siki and Abbey Simon for example. And also to the Shawnigan (now Johannesen) International School of the Arts in Victoria where Robin has been a faculty member for the past few summers.

Back this year, she will be appearing on the opening Concerti Extravaganza program tonight at McPherson Playhouse, playing the Liszt Piano Conerto No. 1 with the Victoria Symphony Summer Festival Orchestra guest-conducted by William Shookhoff.

The setting for Pianist's Progress is New York and New York's renowned Juilliard School of Music. But while the subject is specific it could as well be a prototype for other great schools and many kinds of professional training experience.

The slim book is crowded with incidents illustrating the stresses, strains and humor, the problems, the victories and disasters that are endemic in a highly competitive field.

Ruttencutter first became interested in Robin when the pianist rented a room in the building where she lived. Chance meetings, the attractive young pianist's dedication, her 8 a.m.-to-10 p.m. schedule at the school, sparked the journalistic instinct for good story material.

What the writer discovered about the climb to the top and those things that are necessary for anyone attempting it, were first the subject of a New Yorker article before they blossomed into a hard-cover book.

Robin McCabe has succeeded in making the climb and is now well launched on a successful concert career. Many of her fellow students of the period Ruttencutter is writing about have not made it. Robin, it seems, possesses an abundance of those desirable qualities.

They include as a basic a critical belief in oneself; the word 'critical' is important.

Believing in one's talent does not mean to the exclusion of careful and objective listening.

Robin McCabe has that ability to a high degree. She tells Ruttencutter: "You have to like yourself. You can't function well if you're basically insecure about what's inside you. And if music is only a medium for asserting your ego, then you're in trouble."

Often in sessions with her teacher at Juilliard, Rudolf Firkusny, or with Abbey Simon or Siki, her teacher at the University of Washington, Robin would be harder on herself than they were in voicing criticism of her performance.

The ability to be philosophical is a quality that can help to keep one's head above water. So can resiliency — the talent for bouncing back after an unnerving experience or an unfortunate review. Humor, which seasons and softens so many awkward or difficult moments, is a God-given grace which any musician — any artist — should be grateful for.

Robin tells one amusing story about a concert in Canada (not in Victoria). She was to play the Saint-Saens Concerto No. 2 in G minor in which the piano begins alone with an emphatic octave leading into a grandiose theme.

"The conductor nodded to me, I struck the octave and the piano rolled away from me. I moved the stool forward and tried to keep playing but the piano moved again. It was on a dolly and there was a slight incline to the stage.

"I looked at the conductor and he had his hand over his mouth. The concertmaster had his bow across his face. The hall was pin-dropping quiet. I looked out at the audience — it was a huge hall and almost filled — and started to laugh. Then everyone laughed — roared. A stagehand came out and put blocks under the rollers."

When she tells the story she chuckles reminiscently: "The next day the critic couldn't resist calling it 'a moving performance.'"

Persistence, the power of intense concentration for extended periods, discipline, a clear intelligence; the fact that she thoroughly enjoys playing to people and therefore has never suffered from the nervous condition called stage fright — these are all factors that have helped to launch this charming artist's career.

Ruttencutter tells her story from the beginning when as a young child in Puyallup, Wash., she was found to have perfect pitch. In a closely-knit family with both parents musical, Robin began piano lessons early and at 13, still not taking the subject very seriously, she went with her mother to attend what they thought was a seminar at the University of Washington. But it turned out to be a competition which she won.

"My little ego soared," she tells the author, and from then on the piano was important in her life. Study with Siki at the University of Washington ended with her graduation summa cum laude and departure for New York.

The book covers all phases of Robin's career up to the spring of 1979, including the necessary stages of any performer's pilgrimage; the debut recital and first notices; the grueling but essential work of competitions, the acquisition of a manager, early professional engagements, the first recording contract.

The problems, the enormous barriers to be scaled by any young pianist seeking entry into the world of the professional performer are not glossed over.

"The market for pianists," says Ruttencutter, "is limited. If they they do not succeed on the concert stage — or as is more likely, do not even get a chance to try — they cannot fit into an orchestea as string players can, or into an opera company, as singers can.

"Often they turn to teaching and help to produce a new batch of pianists with the same goal in mind that they themselves have failed to achieve, and thus they contribute another disadvantage — a field that is even more crowded."

The words may sound daunting but they will not long give pause to the richly talented and serious student who starts out with that essential quality — belief in himself or herself.

Who should get paid-for drugs?

By DR. BOB YOUNG

Should medically required drugs be provided at no cost to the patient? If not to all, who should be eligible? Should drugs be free to sufferers of one disease and not to those with a different malady?

Occasionally this column receives a letter from a group interested in helping people with a certain disease. Understandably the volunteers and others working with a select group of patients feel their charges should receive benefits to make their disease less of a burden.

The British Columbia Epilepsy Society has shared with me its concern with the high costs of drugs for the treatment of this disease. Other agencies, with interest in other diseases have raised similar questions before.

Many conditions can be controlled with medications, but a cure is not obtained. The drugs have to be continued indefinitely. Cystic fibrosis, arthritis, diabetes and several forms of heart and kidney disease are other examples. Drug costs for these patients become significant over time.

How much of this cost should society bear? The average citizen, under 65 and not on welfare is responsible for the first $100 of drug costs each year. When this amount is exceeded 80 per cent of additional expenditure is refunded by Pharmacare.

Should further concessions be made in the case of selected diseases? If so, which ones?

The answer, of course, lies in our individual philosophies. The socialists among us argue that all drugs should be provided at no cost to the patient. The free enterprisers would perhaps feel that each of us should pay our own way, except in cases of demonstrated need. The present system is a compromise. The $100 deductible clause significantly reduces the cost to the public purse, while the refund mechanism eases the load for those burdened by continuing high costs.

All illness is costly. Society has recognized this and has developed methods of sharing the cost. I feel that the patient who is able to work in spite of his or her illness should budget for a portion of their drug bill. If the illness precludes employment, drug needs should be met.

Info/Health is brought to you by the British Columbia Medical Association and the Victoria Times.

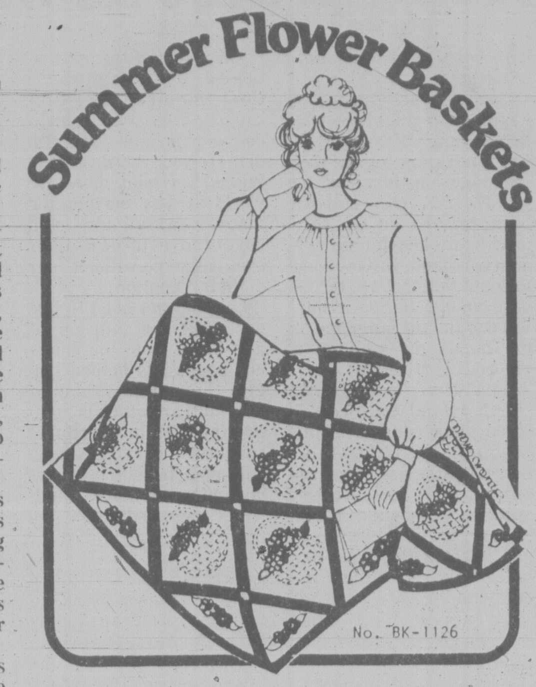
Baskets are beautiful especially to quilters

By Kathy Faryon



Diagonal sashwork a happy change

Quilters, too, have immortalized them in quilt blocks. Some are pieced with tiny triangles, others squares and rectangles, some look woven. Some are circular, others long and squared off. Some look like Easter baskets, which make a child's eyes shine, while others are meant to hold long sprays of Daffodils or Gladiolas.

Our particular basket is the woven variety. It is created with quilting stitches. The summer flowers are nestled cozily inside each basket, their colors bright as the ones in your garden.

The diagonal sashwork is a happy change from the straight up and down, and across variety. Barb Kelcey, the designer, has chosen a deep green, which is repeated in some of the leaves. The flowers may be made with scraps, since each petal is small. By using a colored embroidery floss, quilting thread, or perle cotton for the basket design, for example, in a light, or chocolate brown, you will create a basket shape for your flowers. The stitches do not need to be very tiny as you are creating a three dimensional illusion. You may even wish to make the stitches more like outline embroidery than quilting style. Yarn is also a possibility. The washable type can be used very successfully for quilting.

I think, in the basket example, yarn would be a good choice if it was a good colour and not to thick. Experiment with colors — try grey, black, green mauve. Try white stitches on a blue background fabric. With flowers, every colour of the rainbow is possible. You should have fun mixing and matching with this pattern. Applique, or faced applique (the applique alternative), or even machine applique are all possible methods for this pattern. Happy flowers will brighten your room decor in the months and years ahead.

Smaller restaurant meals, non-smoking dining areas, smoke-free tour buses and better comfort station facilities for older shoppers and travellers — these represent some of the senior squawks in a pile of mail I'm working through.

Less than half the adult population smokes (as low as 37 per cent in B.C.); when it comes to seniors, the percentage of those addicted to the weed is even lower. All non-smokers are irritated and harmed, to some extent, by the puffing populace but older people with breathing and related problems are likely to suffer most.

For years I wrote a column for Canadian Hotel and Restaurant — the hospitality trade magazine; there I campaigned for apple juice on menus, more modest meals for those not interested in disgusting "all you can eat" offers, a non-smoking eating and sleeping areas.

Only worthwhile success I achieved was with apple juice; you now find it on most menus (I'd still like to see them call it Canadian apple juice to counterbalance Florida orange juice).

Some restaurants now provide non-smoking areas and the occasional motel or hotel offers rooms free of stale tobacco smoke but we have a long way to go. And it continues to be difficult to get restaurants and dining rooms to list smaller portions for those on diets or who, for health reasons, should eat sparingly. (The resulting waste of food in this hungry world is outrageous).

So my lone efforts were not sufficiently successful. If readers will keep complaining to those in the bed and board business, perhaps we can make a few more yards. Your letters to me help a little; your concerted complaints to the hospitality trade might help a lot more.

For business generally is becoming more and more aware that the rapidly growing senior population is an important segment of their sales opportunities. Just look at the pages of travel ads in senior magazines and papers; ah, here's one that's attractive (by Charterways Tours): "We have adopted the no smoking policy on all our tours. Smokers please note that the coach stops every few hours for rest and food."

"Do you want a laugh?" writes M.M., Ottawa, enclosing a clipping (May 10/80) from the Toronto Star captioned "Seniors Come Out of the Closet" (two other readers sent me copies of the same item). The piece talked about the success of a seniors' column they had started, suggesting they were blazing new trails.

"The Star asks "Why should it not have been done long ago?" says M.M. "It has been done for a long time. I'm sure I've been reading your column for at least four years and I've got your book of the best of your columns over the years.

"At seniors' conferences (national and provincial) I know your writings have been mentioned for at least three years. So what's so new about the Star's efforts? On the contrary they seem to have been slow catching on. How many years have you been in the Toronto Globe?" (Since January 1977 — L.H.).

Terry dances closer to her dream

It's dancing for Terry all the way

Within a year she expects to start teaching ballet and other forms of the dance, full time. Also up ahead there is the dream of one day opening her own studio.

Home for the summer from London, England, where she is half way through a two-year course with the Royal Academy School of Dancing, Terry is back, temporarily, in the radiography department at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

At the same time she is teaching two nights a week at the Maria Maggiora Ballet School.

Why would a young woman in her mid-twenties turn to dancing as a full-time career?

In fact it could have been deep down in her subconscious right from the day she started ballet lessons when she was 12 years of age.

"I was in the first dance school Marie Maggiora opened, and like many another girl, I looked upon it then as a delightful hobby."

She continued lessons for a time with Sally Hanna, when Maggiora was off in New Zealand, but later moved to the Wynne Shaw school where she passed both the elementary and intermediate Royal Academy examinations in dancing.

By then she was thinking of steady work and that took her to Calgary for training in radiography at the Foothills Hospital.

In her spare hours she still continued dancing lessons and it was those lessons that led to her first experience as a teacher.

"The elderly Russian woman who conducted the class was taken ill and she asked me if I would take over until she recovered."

At the end of hospital training Terry found work as a radiographer, first at Royal Jubilee and then at Victoria General Hospital.

She also went back to Marie Maggiora's ballet school where she helped with teaching in the evenings.

That continued for two years and it was in those years she really began to think seriously of dancing as a full-time career.

"I also realized that even if it remained more or less a hobby and I only taught part-time, I needed more training."

In January last year she sent off an application to the Royal Academy school, was accepted ten months later, gave up her position at the hospital and went off to London to study.

There she joined a class of 22 students, some from various places in the British Isles, others from western Europe and one from Singapore.

They attended school five days a week from 9:30 in the morning until around six at night.

Each day there was an hour and a half of ballet followed by classes in dramatics, music, theory, anatomy, modern jazz, folk dancing and ballroom dancing.

"If you vaguely remember a dance routine and would like to teach it, notations help to bring it back into focus for you."

Advanced training in all those subjects will resume when Terry returns to London in September.

She will also gain practical experience by teaching two evenings a week in various schools connected with the Royal Academy.

Finally she will receive a diploma with the privilege of adding the words Licentiate Royal Academy of Dancing (LRAD) after her name.

Then she will be ready for that new lifestyle.

It could be in Victoria, somewhere on Vancouver Island or even in some other part of British Columbia.

What about London, England?

She shakes her head. "Its too big . . . too impersonal . . . and it would never be home to me."

Nevertheless, she doesn't rule it out "if the offer was really challenging."

Postscript — Terry is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth T. Wright of this city. She has a brother Jim and two sisters, Janet and Susan, who started taking ballet lessons when she did and still continues it as a hobby today.

Skill wrought from a still

VIENNA, Ill. (AP) — The Vienna Correctional Centre is teaching prisoners how to operate a still and make fuel alcohol in the belief that it will give them a highly marketable job skill when they are released. "We want to stay current, and we feel fuel alcohol production is a thing of the future," said Larry Mizell, warden of the minimum security prison in Southern Illinois.

Woundings, bomb threats plague Canada's envoys

TORONTO (CP). — The Toronto Star says 41 Canadian diplomats living abroad have been wounded or assaulted in the last 18 months, and the government has distributed a booklet to embassy personnel on how to combat terrorism.

During the 18-month period, the newspaper says in an Ottawa dispatch, there have been 19 robberies at Canada's foreign embassies and consulates and 20 bomb threats against diplomatic missions.

It says the external affairs department is spending more than $1 million on installing bulletproof screens at its overseas posts, designing armored limousines for use in trouble spots and distributing the booklet.

Canadian officials say most of the 41 attacks were muggings and not politically-motivated, but they would not identify the countries in which diplomats were hurt.

The newspaper says a recent external affairs report said that in the previous 12 months, a Canadian overseas post had an attempted firebombing attack and was warned of a possible sniper attack, another had three "shooting incidents" in a week and a third was tipped off about a possible attack and asked the host government to beef up security.

The booklet recommends Canadians living abroad vary their routines by leaving for work at different times each day and using different routes. It suggests they buy guard dogs and have anti-bomb bolts installed in car exhaust pipes.

The Star says other recommendations in the booklet include keeping travel plans from servants, not letting children ride taxis or public transportation, avoiding direct private phone lines in case they're tapped and avoiding cluttered offices where bombs could be hidden.

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — A British Columbia pilot and an air technician from Grimsby, Ont., were killed Sunday when their firefighting helicopter crashed near Gull Bay, 150 kilometres north of Thunder Bay.

Police said James Ford Collins, 36, of Pitt Meadows, B.C., and Larry Turner, 24, died in the accident.

The deaths were the first fatalities in Northern Ontario fires since they began burning steadily in early May, ministry spokesman Jack Minor said today.

The two men were flying a Bell 204 helicopter owned by Transwest Helicopters Ltd. of Vancouver and leased by the Ontario natural resources ministry. They had dumped water on a huge fire known as Thunder Bay 46 and were returning to the base camp when the accident occurred.

Thunder Bay 46, the largest forest fire in the province in six years, has destroyed more than 313,000 acres (125,000 hectares) of prime timber in three weeks.

Firefighters were dealt a major setback over the weekend when about 40 new fires started in dry, windy weather across northwestern Ontario.

"The situation is deteriorating seriously because of the persistent weather," said Bill Foreman, supervisor of Ontario fires at the ministry's fire centre in Sault Ste. Marie. "There just hasn't been any rain."

Although firefighters were optimistic about bringing Thunder Bay 46 under control as more men were brought in, the other major fire, Ignace 27, fuelled by winds and dry conditions, was spreading.

However, fire control officials said a 2,600-hectare forest fire hovering a mere two kilometres from the northeastern Saskatchewan town of Pelican Narrows was almost under control Sunday night and posing no immediate danger to the community.

The fire almost swept into the small community last Wednesday, forcing about 800 women and children to flee on boats to the safety of nearby islands.

Throughout Saskatchewan, 85 other fires were burning Sunday with 950 men reported trying to control them. Three new fires were reported since Saturday and seven had been extinguished.

Fox, 21, who is running across Canada despite having lost one leg to cancer, raised more than $100,000 for cancer research during his two-day stay in Toronto.

"This is unreal, beautiful — the best ever," he said Sunday as he prepared to head west toward Oakville and Hamilton.

The Canadian Cancer Society says Fox's 8,530-kilometre run has raised more than $500,000 so far.

Dorchester escapees recaptured by RCMP

DORCHESTER, N.B. (CP) — Two convicted murderers, were recaptured today not far from the federal penitentiary from which they escaped last Friday, authorities reported.

The two, Richard Ambrose, 31, of Moncton, N.B., and Gilles Hebert, 36, of Quebec, set off a manhunt throughout southern New Brunswick following their escape. Canada-wide warrants were issued and police authorities in the United States were alerted to be on the lookout for the pair, both described by police as dangerous.

Details of the recapture were sketchy, but it appeared RCMP captured the two men this morning near the prison in this eastern New Brunswick community.

Ambrose was convicted in the 1974 slaying of two Moncton policemen, and Hebert of killing a prison guard in Quebec in 1976.

Prison officials said the escape by Ambrose and Hebert was the first from Dorchester in seven years. Six attempted escapes within the last six months were thwarted.

RCMP in nearby Sackville, N.B., said in a brief statement that the two unarmed escapees were captured at 10:30 a.m. EDT on penitentiary land by police, assisted by a dog and penitentiary staff.

BRANDON (CP) — Doug Christie, leader of the Victoria-based Western Canada Concept, came 2,500 kilometres to proclaim a message of Western separtism Saturday, but almost no one was here to listen.

Only two people showed up at a Brandon University hall to hear Christie's appeal to westerners to fight the "rape of the west by the east" with the threat of separation.

Independence is "the only tool for developing the west's resources for the people living here," he said. "But if you don't care, or you don't think you have the power to change things, you won't."

The 34-year-old Victoria lawyer said the federal government works for the interests of Ontario and Quebec. Therefore, westerners will have to fight to keep the benefits of their own resources because they have no effective voice in Ottawa.

If the benefits from resource development do not remain in the west "we will become as the maritimes now are when our resources are depleted."

A letter distributed by Christie asks the western premiers to demand several guarantees for the west during upcoming constitutional talks. It warns if nothing is done the powers used to exploit the west will be entrenched in the constitution.

The letter calls for complete benefits from resource revenues, free trade for the western provinces, an end to official bilingualism, regional control of immigration to the west, an end to equalization payments and regional representation in a reformed Senate and Supreme Court equal to the west's productive contribution to federal revenues.

If these demands are not met a referendum for independence should be held and the western premiers should start negotiations to form a new nation of Western Canada, Christie said.

Christie said the group, which he declined to call a party, has about 12,000 members across Western Canada.

CALGARY (CP) — The Canadian Goliath seems ready to do battle with the American David in a showdown at the annual convention of building trades union leaders which opens today.

However, in a reversal of history, this time Goliath seems fully prepared to accept victory.

At issue is a long-simmering dispute between 14 U.S.-based international building trades unions and the Canadian Labor Congress, the umbrella organization of organized labor in this country, over who should represent 400,000 Canadian workers.

Relations have long been strained between the CLC leadership and the 14 international unions that make up the U.S. Building and Construction Trades Department.

There were threats of pullout in 1974 when the CLC considered regulations forcing its international affiliates to take on a more Canadian character.

But the long-festering differences between the CLC and the unions came to a head last April, when the two building trades leaders who sat on the congress executive, Ken Rose and Raymond Gall, quit and called for a boycott of the CLC's convention in May.

The reason given for the action was the CLC refusal to act against the Quebec Federation of Labor which has harbored several breakaway construction locals.

Among the breakaway locals was a group of 10,000 electricians who were once members of the Rose's International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Some building union delegates eventually attended the CLC convention and stayed to elect new executive representatives to replace both Rose and Gall.

However, the U.S. headquarters of the unions continues to withhold per-capita dues owed to the congress. Rose, Gall and other major union leaders in Canada remain upset with the CLC.

Perhaps sensing an apparent weakness among its critics, the CLC seems unconcerned about a possible split even though it would lose $1.3 million in dues, or 20 per cent of its annual budget, if the building trades pull out.

There have been no conciliation efforts from the congress executive and CLC staff member Jean-Pierre Rivard goes as far as to welcome the departure of the U.S.-based unions.

Rivard predicts that the CLC might then consider new, all-Canadian building trades unions to compete openly with the internationals.

TORONTO (CP) — Despite the hard line taken by the western provinces in oil pricing talks with Ottawa, only 16 per cent of Western Canadians believe the provinces should have exclusive control over resources, a Gallup poll shows.

The poll, conducted shortly after last month's first ministers' conference, shows that 13 per cent of Canadians over-all favor exclusive federal control over resources. About 15 per cent support complete provincial control.

About two-thirds (67 per cent) of the national sample believed the federal and provincial governments should share control over resources. Among westerners, 70 per cent favor shared control.

The survey also showed that 52 per cent of Canadians agreed that "when there is a conflict between the federal government and any provincial government, the federal government should win because it is the government responsible for the welfare of all Canadians."

scott's world

by vernon scott

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dyan Cannon has fired off again with two new movies coming up this summer, Honeysuckle Rose and Coast to Coast.

Dyan has devloped a curious two-year, two-movie cycle in her career, interrupted by two-year disappearances from the screen.

When last heard from, Dyan had starred in Revenge of the Pink Panther and Heaven Can Wait, like her current one-two punch, they came one on top of the other.

In the interval between the four pictures Dyan's only appearance was in the TV movie Lady of the House, playing Sally Stanford in a story of the famed San Francisco brothel entrepreneur.

Most established actresses quail at the thought of long absences from the screen. A two-year hiatus is the equivalant of a mini-retirement in most of their minds. The public and the movie industry have short memories.

Dyan, however, is unafraid of lengthy breathers. Perched on a white couch in her office at Paramount, she looked the ultimate movie star. Her long, vari-colored blonde hair tumbled in a thousand curly strands around her tanned, blue-eyed face.

She wore fawn-colored, hand-tooled boots, beige blouse and pants which looked like satin. Very sexy.

"It's better not to make a movie at all than to star in a bad one," she said. "And for two years I looked at nothing but scripts that didn't appeal to me in the slightest.

"I won't get involved with a picture unless I totally believe in it. I can't work as an actress just for the sake of working or for the satisfaction of seeing myself up there on the screen.

"I acted in some theatre projects and worked on the script for Coast To Coast. And once I agreed to do Honeysuckle Rose with Willie Nelson I also got involved in some of the rewriting.

"I've come to a point in my career where I can't just be hired as an actress. I want to be wholly involved. That doesn't mean I interfere with the director. There's only one director and that's the way it should be.

"But there is plenty of room for an actress' input in the script if she becomes part of the picture early and feels the need for creative contribution. Of all the arts, movies are the most collaborative of all.

"It's not that I'm just thinking about my own part. To the contrary, I get involved in dialogue, plot and other characters in the story."

Dyan has won three Oscar nominations, for her acting performances in Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice and Heaven Can Wait, and for producing the best short subject, Number One, which Dyan also wrote and directed.

It was her heady experience as the creative force of Number One, under the aegis of the American Film Institute, that has given Dyan the confidence to participate in the creative elements of her subsequent films.

She currently is co-writing another script, For The First Time, which she hopes to direct and produce for her own company. She is working with director Jerry Schatsberg on another movie project.

"There's no comparison between contributing to the production as a whole or just showing up and reading your lines," Dyan said. "That bores me.

"I was excited about Honeysuckle Rose because it gave me a chance to do some real country and western singing. Now I'm putting a deal together to make a record album.

"But the part I've always wanted to play is the girl I helped create for Coast to Coast.

WIN A summerfunthing

THIS WEEK'S PRIZES

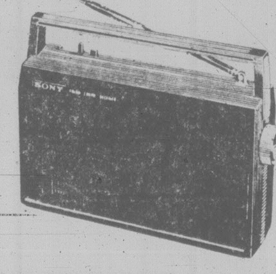
8-PIECE FILAGREE PATIO SET

2nd



SONY PORTABLE AM/FM RADIO

OUTBOUND BACK PACK
(4 to be won)

HOW TO PLAY

Locked inside the "SUMMERFUNTHING" safe are many valuable prizes. Some of those prizes could be yours if you find the correct PASSWORD that opens the combination lock. It's an exciting game that's fun and easy to enter. The instructions on the dial give you the position of the letters in the "SUMMERFUNTHING" PASSWORD. All you have to do is find the first letter to start. For instance, suppose you started at the letter E and the instructions read 2nd LETTER-FOUR COUNTER CLOCKWISE. Count four spaces in a counter-clockwise direction from the letter E and you arrive at the letter A. The next instruction reads 3rd LETTER-EIGHT COUNTER CLOCKWISE, so count off eight spaces in a counter-clockwise direction from the letter A and you arrive at the letter S. Finally the 4th letter. SIX CLOCKWISE means you count in a clockwise direction from the letter S and you arrive at the letter Y. In this example the PASSWORD is the word E-A-S-Y. To give you another clue and to add to the interest, each day's password is scrambled and you will find it at the bottom of the illustration.

GAME RULES

1. Winners will be chosen by random drawing from all valid entries. All winners must answer a skill testing question.
2. Winners from the previous week will be published in the Saturday Times and Sunday Colonist.
3. It is not necessary for contestants to buy the Colonist or Times to enter the SUMMERFUNTHING contest. An exact drawing of the entry form printed in the Colonist or Times may be made on a plain piece of paper. Note: copies produced by any other process will not be accepted.
4. The SUMMERFUNTHING judges will have the final decision on any interpretation of Game rules.
5. As a condition of receiving prizes, recipients agree to allow publication of their names and pictures in the Colonist or Times for no additional consideration. Submission of an entry indicates acceptance of all rules. No prize substitutions.
6. The contest is open to all readers of the Daily Colonist and Victoria Times on Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands. Employees of Victoria Press and their immediate families are not eligible to enter.
7. In fairness to all, the Colonist or Times cannot answer questions or respond to phone calls or letters regarding THE SUMMERFUNTHING CONTEST.
8. All winners will be determined by a random draw from all valid entries.

HOW TO ENTER

Complete the puzzle and fill in the "PASSWORD" on the entry form. Clip out the entry form and send it to us in an envelope with the puzzle number printed in the top left hand corner of the envelope. (As illustrated.)

Be sure to include your name, address and phone number on the entry form.

Enter as many times as you wish but make sure each entry is in a separate envelope.

Victoria, B.C.
V8W 3C4

Victoria Press
2621 Douglas St.
Monday through Friday
8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

A new puzzle will appear each day, but the weekly winners will be selected from all entries submitted for the previous week's puzzles.

To be eligible, your entry must be received by 5:30 p.m. on the Thursday following the week the puzzle was published.
Enter daily, or as often as you wish, but be sure each entry is submitted in a separate envelope.

Winnipeg Folk Festival breaks deficit

WINNIPEG (CP) — Mitch Podolak, artistic director of the Winnipeg Folk Festival, scratched his bushy, black beard and let a tiny grin shine through.

"Hey, today was the first time in five years we've broken our deficit," he confided to a group of reporters Sunday. "What else can I say?"

Aside from the bright financial statement Podolak will be receiving in the near future, the seventh annual Winnipeg Folk Festival held at Birds Hill Park this weekend was a musical success no matter who you talked to.

"It's excellent," said Maureen Fisher, of Chicago, attending her first festival. "They've just got so many good people here, and the workshops are great."

Podolak estimated total attendance for the three-day event at 28,000, with some fans from as far away as Mississipi. They were lured by such singers as Pete Seeger, David Amram, Tom Paxton, Sylvia Tyson and Ryan's Fancy.

"It's more than last year's crowd," Podolak said, "And we'll be making sure we don't have many more next year."

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

An extra 'room' in your back yard garden notes

by helen chesnut

Our family is having something of a departure from tradition this year for it's the first summer in ages that we haven't embarked on a grand three-week vacation. Every year we would soak out the tensions in the sun, away from kitchen and garden, reading slightly trashy novels, exploring new places, swimming and playing.

This year, owing to our changed work schedules, we are taking a week each in the spring and fall. This summer will see us mostly in our back yard, at the local beaches and on day and overnight trips to places new to us but not far away.

Many homeowners, for various reasons, find their vacation plans in disarray. And actually, the prospects of staying home during the summer need not be so grim. Many people plan things this way, to spend a tranquil week or two in the comfortable familiarity of their own yards, venturing out to local spots of interest they normally wouldn't take time to visit — and the island has many such places.

In fact, if you want to take the time to plan and execute it, you can turn your back yard into that extra outdoor room you've always wanted. Your summer living space can extend into the back yard for outdoor entertaining or just enjoying the sights and sounds of nature. You can fix up a place to play badminton or croquet or volleyball. You can even set up a small putting green for practice sessions.

If sitting and relaxing is more your speed, landscape yourself a backyard retreat, screened from noise and distraction by trees, shrubs and vines filled with the aroma of flowering plants and shaded from the hot summer sun. Get started on such a project and you may even go overboard and add a gurgling fountain or even a hot tub to soothe away the tensions.

The sound of the gentle flow of water is marvellously relaxing, as the Japanese well know. We recently spent an evening at a popular Japanese restaurant, enjoying immaculate hospitality and listening to the light splashing of water in the background, emanating from a fountain pool.

Total summer enjoyment of your "holiday" home can be greatly increased as well with the planting of shade trees on the south and west sides of the house. I have always particularly enjoyed growing honeysuckle vines up the hot kitchen wall. The fragrant varieties are a special treat, as are the hummingbirds the honeysuckle attracts.

Our previous home, which was on a corner lot, was truly an outdoor room for us. We constructed an attractive fence around the back yard part of it and began growing lovely climbing things against it, using wire mesh where necessary. Some were just annuals like scarlet runner beans, trailing nasturtiums and sweet peas, but all the plantings gave a cozy effect.

Beside the kitchen door, next to the patio, we grew our grapes over an arbor. During the hot season, we ate at a table underneath, with the large, exotic leaves and beautiful clusters of grapes above us. The shade of the grape vines provided an ideal spot for my foliage houseplants against the kitchen wall.

The opportunities to create a highly aesthetic vacation spot in your back yard are limited only by your imagination. One wise first step is to take a leisurely tour of a demonstration garden where the plantings are named — perhaps Butchart's Gardens or, during a visit on the mainland, the new Minter Gardens near Chilliwack.

Next, visit a couple of your local nurseries and see where you can purchase the plantings you liked most at the display gardens. I haven't had the pleasure of visiting there yet but I understand Minters actually sell plants at their gardens. This would certainly alleviate a common frustration of gardeners who would love to be able to buy an especially appealing variety but find their local nurseries pretty well stick to the more mundane specimens. I don't know about you but I like to find something just a bit different now and then for my garden.

We can make our homes into vacation spots by landscaping a place to play, a place to relax and enjoy nature, a place to entertain friends. After all, spending more time at home with the family and neighbors is not such a bad idea. And trees, shrubs and vines can make your home a more pleasant, energy efficient and often money-saving environment.

Visions of the future mostly pipe dreams

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Futurists enjoy forecasting the future, and they have developed some fair sophisticated techniques for doing it.

The main function of this emerging field, however, is to help people make decisions in the present by showing them the consequences of alternative actions.

Futurists complain that they take the rap for bum predictions made by non-futurists. They are also amused by the askew prognostications down through the years.

Some notable anticipations gone awry:

—A committee appointed by King Ferdinand and Queen Izabella to study Christopher Columbus' proposed voyage weighed the idea for four years and decided that it was impossible.

— "Any general system of conveying passengers at a velocity exceeding 10 miles an hour or thereabouts is extremely improbable," Thomas Tredgold, a British railroad designer, said in 1835.

— "Even if the screw propeller had the power of propelling a vessel, it would be found altogether useless — it would be absolutely impossible to make the vessel steer," Sir William Symonds, surveyor of the British navy, in 1837.

— The automobile "will never, of course, come into as common use as the bicycle," the Literary Digest in 1899.

— "The (atomic) bomb will never go off, and I speak as an expert on explosives," Vennevar Bush, president of the Carnegie Institution, told President Truman in 1945.

All this led Arthur C. Clarke, the science fiction author, to write: "When a distinguished but elderly scientist states that something is possible, he is almost certainly right. When he states that something is impossible, he is very probably wrong."

'Last great odyssey' hunt for Titanic begins

The Titanic rammed into an iceberg in the North Atlantic 68 years ago and sank, carrying 1,490 passengers and crew to a watery grave 2 ½ miles below the surface.

Filmmaker Mike Harris of Tampa, Fla. — with the help of Texas oilman Jack Grimm and 34 other adventurers — plans to set out at dawn today on the 175-foot research vessel, H.J.W. Fay, to try to pinpoint the spot on the ocean floor where the 882-foot-long hulk lies.

To find it, Harris and Grimm will use a newly developed "side-scan sonar" built specially for the non-profit "Titanic '80" expedition by a Redmond, Wash., firm.

If the quest is successful, Harris plans to return to the site next year with the Aluminaut, which its developer claims is the world's deepest diving submarine, to attempt the salvage of jewelry and other items from the ship, which sank in 1912.

The purposes of the expedition are multiple.

Harris, who has dreamed of finding the Titanic for five years, will be filming it. Writer Bill Stevens, author of Raid on Entebbe, will be writing about it. Grimm, who met Harris in Turkey during an unsuccessful search for the remains of Noah's Ark, agreed to underwrite most of the $2 million cost.

Among the 36 crewmen searching for the Titanic are geologists who hope to gather valuable information about mining the rich mineral deposits of the deep sea.

But mainly, the expedition is an adventure — one that has attracted people from across the country.

Among them is Al Kaplan, a Queens (N.Y.) College graduate who will do the cooking for the expedition. He says he's never been on a ship before but volunteered for the expedition after reading a newspaper article about it.

"I hope I don't get seasick," he said. "I've never been out to sea before in my life.

"If I like it, I'm going to chuck everything — my marriage, my job, you name it. I might go down to the Amazon just for the hell of it.

"Look," he added, "I'm 33 years old and 20 pounds overweight. My hair's going and my veins are popping out. I figured I'd better get on with it."

THE COLONIST & TIMES

Imagine if you can . . . a motorized iceberg

By LYNDE McCORMICK

LOS ANGELES — Imagine yourself nestled into a deck chair on one of those cruise ships that stroll leisurely through the South Pacific Ocean. Nothing is between you and the horizon except ocean, the outline of some distant archipelago and an iceberg.

An iceberg? Down here?

Don't worry, though, about the spectre of a Titanic-like crash. The captain of the iceberg is in contact with your cruise ship captain, and a hard right rudder effects some change of course.

Right now, the whole thing barely is more than a gleam in the eye of Joseph A. Connell. But if things go his way, the image could mean an agricultural boon to the world.

Basically, Connell wants to drive an iceberg from the Antarctic to Australia, or Baja California (Mexico), or perhaps India. The purpose is a reallocation of resources, a more equal distribution of the fresh and usable water from the places where it is the most bountiful but least used to the places where it is scarcest but most needed.

The notion of moving icebergs to arid lands has been kicking around for several years. Saudi Prince Muhammad Faisal, one of King Khalid's nephews and head of the Saudi Saline Water Conversion Corp., has spent millions of dollars to research the possibility of towing icebergs to his dry land, but the idea has proved quixotic if not impossible. Towing a big enough iceberg for a year's supply of water would take upward of 10 oceangoing tugboats, burning between 80 million to 100 million gallons of fuel. Too expensive, even for a country where money and fuel are no object.

Connell holds 80 worldwide patents — 81 if he is granted the patent on his mechanized iceberg — and invented Cryostart, a system for starting jet engines which is used at airports around the world. He is a recognized expert in the field of cryogenics (the science of the very cold), and a dabbler in energy matters. He designed a successful garbage-into-methane plant in the Los Angeles area and has received a decided "maybe" from Ford on an energy-stingy automobile engine design. Officially, he is president of the Du Pont-Connell Co. near here.

"Icebergs are always calving (breaking away) in the Antarctic," Connell said. "The biggest was larger than Belgium, and icebergs 10 miles long and 1,000 to 1,200 feet thick are fairly common. They are an obvious source of fresh water that comes in convenient, tow-away packages. The problem is how to get the icebergs out of the Antarctic. People have been talking about doing that since 1964...but towing has been found to be impractical. Then we get into the concept of doing it without fuel."

Connell's idea is to milk energy out of the iceberg, capitalizing on the berg's being significantly colder, by 10 to 20 degrees, than the water it floats in. His system would use that temperature difference to change a substance, most likely Freon, from liquid into gas. The gas then would drive a turbine which would spin a propeller which would push the iceberg.

The Freon, in liquid form, would be pumped under pressure into a heat exchanger under water where the warmer temperatures would convert the Freon into gas. The gas then is pumped into a turbine. The gas expands. The turbine starts whirring, to the tune of 10,000 horsepower, and power in the form of electricity comes crackling out the other end, eventually driving a propeller.

The Freon gas leaves the turbine and heads for another heat exchanger, this one buried in the ice, where the colder temperatures turn the gas back into liquid. It then is pressurized and starts the cycle again.

Connell foresees 10 to 12 such power plants on one iceberg, manned by a crew of about 40. The iceberg would be so big as to require rapid transit, a monorail, perhaps, to ferry crew members from one end to the other. He figures it would cost somewhere between $65 million and $100 million, but points out that the equipment could be reused on the next iceberg, "so the final cost is really much less," between $15 million and $30 million.

If that seems like a lot of money, consider that California has, to date, spent over $2 billion on a plan to bring more water to the southern half of the state, and the first drop still is years and megadollars away.

"Most of this is pretty straightforward stuff," Connell said of the system, and he readily admitted that the technology involved is borrowed from OTEC (Ocean Thermal Energy Conversion), a design to create electrical power out of the temperature difference between deep ocean water and that close to the surface. Industrial giants such as Westinghouse Electric, and TRW, as well as the federal government, have invested millions of dollars in OTEC. A small OTEC plant, 50 kilowatts, currently is in experimental use off Hawaii.

Connell's icebergs would have to come from Antarctica, where the bergs come flat instead of peaked, as they do in the Arctic.

Brother, sister hacked to death

WINNIPEG (CP) — Jasinder Pal Singh Sodhi, 22, a visitor from India, was to be arraigned in court Tuesday on two counts of first degree murder in the axe slaying of his brother-in-law and sister in-law.

The victims, Amninder Sodhi, 21, and her brother, Parabjit Singh, 19, were killed with an axe as they slept in their beds Friday in an old two-storey farm house in West St. Paul, 25 kilometres northwest of here.

Mrs. Sodhi's body was found in an upstairs bedroom and Singh's in a downstairs sitting room.

The accused, a guest in the Sodhi home, is to appear in court in Selkirk near West St.Paul.

Factory worker Rajinder Sodhi, husband of the slain woman, said in a weekend interview his accused brother came to Canada from India as a visitor in September, 1979.

He said his brother lived with relatives in Vancouver before coming to Winnipeg.

Rajinder said his slain wife was to have been granted her Canadian citizenship this month.

"She always had a smile."

Her slain brother was described by relatives as an athletic and musically-talented young man. He had been visiting his sister in law and her family and was planning to return to school in Punjab, India.

"Everyone was so fond of him," said Del Virk, a Vancouver relative. "He was such a good singer."

Curiously, Virk said a couple of days before his death, the brother had written a poem in a birthday card to a three-year-old relative in Vancouver.

Virk translated the poem as saying: "Be happy. You don't know when you're not going to wake up."

Mrs. Sodhi worked part time at a convenience store and had lived in the farm house for the last 1½ years.

Her small son has been staying with friends because he cried for his mother when he was brought home.

"He wanted to go upstairs," the youngster's father said, fighting back tears.

Sea Festival riot rocks Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — A weekend riot which sent three policeman to hospital has put the future of Vancouver's Sea Festival in jeopardy.

Shocked festival officials and city politicians say they will be keeping close watch on the celebrations through next weekend to determine if the festival will be staged at all next year.

For the moment, the annual event is being allowed to continue, but police will be stepping up patrols and and enforcing a 10 p.m. curfew to prevent any further problems.

Three police officers were taken to hospital for minor injuries they received while trying to control a crowd of 2,000 to 3,000 celebrants who gathered around English Bay.

Two patrol cars and two ambulances had windshields smashed by rocks or bottles when the revellers clashed with policemen.

The riot started when rowdies set fire to large garbage containers and then tried to stop firefighters from dowsing the blazes. When a firehose was turned on the partying crowd, the mood turned ugly and the firefighters faced a barage of rocks and bottles.

Festival chairman Graham Clark said he will resign if there is a repeat of the riot at English Bay in which nine police officers were injured.

Clark said he is opposed to cancelling or curtailing the remainder of the 10-day festival, which features a bathtub race across Georgia Strait, an air show, beauty pageant and sea-related events.

He said he does not see why the city should "cave in to the likes of the ruffians and hoodlums who come out from under the rocks once a year."

Mayor Jack Volrich, also chairman of the city's police board, said he is satisfied the police acted properly and that their conduct did not aggravate the rioters.

Volrich said next year's festival format will be reviewed and changes may be made.

If there is any recurrence, however, the city would "have to take serious measures immediately."

More policemen will be called and the beaches will be cleared at 10 p.m. PDT as required by a city bylaw, Vancouver police chief Don Winterton told a news conference Sunday afternoon. And if necessary, he said, police will be equipped with riot gear to clear the crowds.

In addition to the three policemen admitted to hospital, six other policemen and a fire captain were injured, three police cars and two ambulances were damaged, and businesses were damaged.

Winterton said a small group of 300 persons brought their own liquor and got drunk but were concealed in a larger group of 2,000 to 3,000 decent citizens.

Liquor was confiscated and charges were laid. He did not have details of the charges.

Plunge at falls kills swimmer

A 21-year-old Coquitlam man was swept to his death over the middle cataract of Little Qualicum Falls Saturday afternoon as his wife watched helplessly from shore.

Parksville RCMP said the body of Roderick Michael Kreitewolf, 65 Whiting Way, Coquitlam, was recovered below the rain-swollen falls by federal fisheries officers and Parksville Search and Rescue.

Kreitewolf was swimming in a pool upstream near Middle Pridge when he was caught by the current and swept over the vertical drop to his death.

The victim's wife, Rose, was on shore.

Helicopter airlift really falls flat

Efforts to have a helicopter lift a downed Airwest turbine-powered Beaver float plane from a Duncan hay field backfired on the weekend when the plane dropped in mid-air, crashed and burned.

A witness told the Times the Okanagan Helicopters' machine had the plane, worth close to $300,000, up about 90 to 120 metres Saturday evening when something let go.

The plane landed safely on the field Wednesday night after developing problems on a flight from Victoria to Duncan.

The six occupants were safe and Airwest said the plane suffered no damage.

But witness David Strand of Duncan said the Beaver was a total wreck after Saturday's aborted lift attempt.

He said he was visiting his parent's near the field when the lift began and he decided to watch and take pictures.

He said once the cable and all the rigging was ready, the helicopter lifted the plane and took it quite high in the air and then turned, apparently heading for Quamichan Lake.

"Then all of a sudden the plane let go and the helicopter jumped up in the air."

He said he couldn't see exactly where the plane landed because it went behind some trees.

By the time he got there, five minutes later, the fire had already melted the aluminum. He said only the tips of the wings were not burned. The motor was driven deep into the swampy ground.

Strand thought a connection at the helicopter must have let go because he said all of the cable was with the downed plane.

However, Ken Blackwood, operations manager for Okanagan Helicopters, said today rigging at the bottom end — around the plane — appeared to let go.

There has been no official statement on the cause of the accident yet, he added, noting that the insurance adjusters will study mishap.

Blackwood said accidents of this kind do not merit a Transport Canada investigation.

Ted Thornton of Vancouver, Airwest's manager of station services, said he wasn't sure what caused the accident.

Airwest will be salvage whatever it can of the burned-out plane, he said.

Heatwave filling up morgues

Times News Services

From Texas to Georgia and as far north as Indiana, millions of Americans have been subjected to weeks of 40°C and above temperatures that are blamed in the deaths of more than 500 people.

The morgue at Kansas City, Mo., is full to capacity and county officials are urging victims' relatives to claim bodies quickly.

Damage to crops and livestock in Texas has already exceeded $1 billion, and state agriculture official Rick Henderson said the drought coupled with depressed farm prices will force about 3,000 of the state's farmers out of business this year.

"We've been losing farmers steadily for the past few years, but this latest drought will spell the end for many, many of our state's farmers," Henderson said.

At Millett in south Texas, Dick Reinhardt said he has had only one good crop yield this year.

"I bought this place to get away from the high cost of irrigating in the Panhandle," he said. "If it doesn't rain by Aug. 15, I'm in real trouble."

The greatest toll from the heat wave has been in lives lost with 505 deaths in which heat was blamed or considered a contributing factor. Missouri had the highest toll with 120 deaths. There were 105 in Arkansas, 90 in Texas, 32 each in Mississippi and Tennessee, 31 in Oklahoma, 26 in Georgia, 23 in Kansas, 18 in Illinois, 17 in Alabama, six in Louisiana, three in Indiana and one each in Colorado and Nebraska.

Missouri Gov. Joseph Teasdale declared a state of emergency and placed the National Guard on alert today as the number of heat-related deaths in the state soared over 40.

"Missourians are suffering and dying," the governor said in signing an executive order placing guard units in St. Louis, Kansas City, Springfield and Jefferson City on alert to provide emergency transportation.

Sunday's high in St. Louis was 36 and that was cool compared with some other spots. It was 42 in Memphis, the hottest day in the city since records were started in 1875. In Batesville, Ark., it was 44.

"We're just going to have to sweat it out," said Rip Howard, a forecaster for National Weather Service in Memphis.

In Arkansas, the state pollution control and ecology department reported that the air in Little Rock was unhealthy for three hours each afternoon because of a high content of ozone.

Ozone is produced from a reaction between sunlight and air pollution, the department said. A high ozone content in the air can cause respiratory problems and hurt plants, the department said.

GOP convention opens

DETROIT (CP) — Bugles and flags, high hopes and a country-style rendition of the Star-Spangled Banner launched the 1980 Republican party convention today, a congress the party hopes will put Ronald Reagan in the White House.

As Reagan headed to this border city from his California ranch to accept the nomination for the presidency, the 1,994 official delegates, an equal number of alternate delegates and as many of the thousands of observers and journalists who could breach security around the convention got the four-day political pep-rally rolling.

However, behind the hoopla there was evidence of some cracks in the partisan solidarity demonstrated in the convention hall for the national television networks. See page 21.

Energy tax still alive - Lalonde

The federal government still is considering a possible export tax on energy despite a strong condemnation of such a move by the Alberta and B.C. governments, Energy Minister Marc Lalonde said today.

Lalonde, here to meet with B.C. counterpart Bob McClelland, acknowledged the western opposition to such a tax, but refused to say what action he will recommend.

Premier Bill Bennett of B.C. said after the B.C.-Alberta meeting Friday such a tax would have nothing to do with a federal energy policy, but would represent only a "money grab" by Ottawa to help it relieve the massive public debt.

Lalonde questioned that statement, saying a tax of any kind is a money collection.

"Our purpose is to try and raise the necessary revenues for the national government to fill its national responsibility, particularly in the energy field," he said. "The purpose is not to raise revenues for the general operation of government.

"This is not the main target, the main purpose of our review of energy policy. It's to try to develop an energy program which will be properly financed and which will allow the government of Canada to do its share in the area of energy policy."

'Nothing doing' at Mount Hood

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Mount St. Helens quivered but Mount Hood was quiet as scientists in Washington and Oregon monitored the two volcanos for any hints of an impending eruption.

Both mountains, about 110 kilometres apart on opposite sides of the Columbia River, are wired for sound. Additional instruments were placed around Oregon's Mount Hood following a series of earthquakes last week. Washington's Mount St. Helens showed similar seismic activity before it began belching steam and ash March 27.

At Mount Hood, the word Sunday was "nothing, nothing at all," said Norma Koski of the U.S. Forest Service.

Twelve earthquakes were recorded early Saturday on Mount Hood, but scientists remained uncertain whether the 3,425-metre peak would erupt, said Tim Hait, U.S. Geological Survey geologist.

Hait said the 90 quakes recorded on Mount Hood since July 6 were fewer than recorded at Mount St. Helens the week before March 27.

At Mount St. Helens, one tiny quake was recorded Saturday and another early Sunday, Koski said. Scientists say such quivers may indicate avalanches or steam explosions.

A volcano hazard watch has been issued for Mount Hood, 70 km east of Portland, Ore. Steam has drifted from the mountain infrequently since the last confirmed eruption in 1865.

Sheriff Bob Lynch said 1,500 residents within a 25-km radius of the mountain would be warned by sirens to evacuate to the community of Hood River. However, officials said an eruption might cause flooding on Hood River and wash out several bridges, blocking the only escape from the city.

Forty-five die in El Salvador violence

SAN SALVADOR (Reuter) — Police said Sunday at least 45 people were killed in politically-motivated violence in the last 24 hours in El Salvador, where peasants continue to hold the Costa Rican Embassy.

Police said the bullet-riddled bodies of 31 people were found in the country's second city, Santa Ana, 640 kilometres west of San Salvador.

The Canadian Press

The B.C. and Alberta governments may bid to take control of all railway lines operated from Winnipeg west by Canadian National Railways and CP Rail, says B.C. Transport Minister Alex Fraser.

The proposal was apparently one of several considered Friday at a private meeting of cabinet ministers from the two provincial governments.

No details were released on how the two governments would go about taking control of the railways. CP Rail is privately owned and the CNR is owned by the federal government.

The ministers also discussed joint development of railways to northeastern B.C. coal fields. Such a link, if extended into Alberta, would encourage coal exploration in that province.

A communique released after the meeting said Fraser and Horst Schmid, Alberta's economic development minister, will be co-chairmen of an interprovincial cabinet committee charged with preparing a rail and port master plan.

"The ports are the main concern," Fraser said. "It is hard to say what the federal government's attitude is.

"Really, the port facilities are a mess and both ourselves and Alberta are worried that foreign countries will go elsewhere because we are looked at as unreliable suppliers of wheat, coal and other goods.

Meanwhile, the premiers of Alberta and B.C. said today they will be in no mood to co-operate at the September constitutional conference if Ottawa goes ahead with a tax on natural gas exports.

In an interview on CTV's Canada-AM show, Peter Lougheed of Alberta said the export tax would be discriminatory and "render this Confederation in a very shaky way."

B.C.'s Bill Bennett said the tax would be a "money grab by the federal government" and would make Western Canadians question the value of Confederation.

Picnic perfection

The weather was superb and the timing was perfect Saturday for the annual Fairfield Community picnic at Beacon Hill Park. Neighborhood picnickers made the most of it and were royally entertained by Whacker the clown (lower left), mime artist Raima (centre), music and dancing. And as usual the youngsters were front and centre, even when they were simply taking a quiet moment like Harmony Harper, 4, (left in lower right photo) and Cacia Goodacre, 3, for some ice cream while making sure the balloons stayed put.

In case you're wondering

I know that many oranges and all pink grapefruit from California are impregnated with color and that it's no longer necessary to have the fruit stamped "coloring matter added." However, I can't convince several of my friends and I wonder if you can check about the current situtation. M.H.

Hope you didn't bet on this one. We've checked with the federal consumer affairs department, the Consumer's Association and Sunkist Growers Ltd. and have learned that today little coloring is added to oranges and grapefruit.

A spokesman from Sunkist's office in Vancouver said its fruit, which comes from California and Arizona, is not permitted, by legislation in those states, to have color added.

Fruit from Texas and Florida is ocassionally treated by having coloring added to the wax which is put on the fruit after its own natural wax is removed during a washing stage.

The Sunkist spokesman said that contrary to popular belief pink grapefruits are not colored. They are the result of cross-breeding but are indistinguishable in taste from white grapefruit.

A check with material from the consumer's association showed no indication that oranges or grapefruits are colored.

Federal legislation in Canada does permit some coloring to be used in the fruits in specified quantities. The legislation calls for the cartons containing such colored fruit to be marked with the information.

Police talks resume

Provincial mediator Bob Almgren has called both parties in the Victoria area police dispute together for a meeting Wednesday.

Almgren earlier withdrew from the contract dispute involving about 190 Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt policemen so apparently he will be at the meeting in an unofficial capacity.

The policemen began a limited strike Wednesday. They are wearing civilian clothes to work and refusing to do paperwork.

The policemen, along with their counterparts in Saanich, have been bargaining for the first time as a group with the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association, rather than with their individual police boards.

Saanich police are not in a legal position to strike because, unlike the other policemen whose contracts expired Dec. 31, 1979, theirs is in force until the end of the year.

The main issue in the dispute is the standardization of the four contracts.

No beer, more ordered

Greater Victoria liquor stores were cleaned out of beer on Saturday and most were still waiting for more this morning.

In a survey of five stores, only one, in James Bay at 230 Menzies, had beer and a spokesman cautioned that there was not a whole lot.

The panic-buying of the brew began Friday following reports that talks involving employees at B.C.'s three major breweries had broken off and the companies had served 72-hour lockout notice.

The Foul Bay liquor outlet sold all the beer it had in hour Saturday as people lined up outside the stores.

Meanwhile, there is a glimmer of hope that a brewery shutdown can be averted.

Mediator Ken Albertini met today with brewery representatives and officials of the Brewery, Winery and Distillery Workers Union.

Albertini is involved in an unofficial capacity as he had earlier agreed to a company request that he report out of the dispute.

Everybody jumped, survived

Seven passengers and crew of the 26-foot sightseeing boat Quadra received minor burns when the vessel burst into flame after refuelling at Comox Sunday afternoon.

RCMP said the boat had just pulled away from the fuel dock in Comox harbor when it caught fire. All those aboard jumped over the side and were picked up immediately by other boaters.

Police said a fire marshal's investigation is being carries out. It appears the fire was caused by gasoline fumes accumulated when fuel was being taken aboard.

Glengarry RNs stage sit-in in cafeteria

Jerry Miller of Vancouver, spokesman for the Registered Nurses Association, said the issue centres around management's refusal to implement an arbitration board ruling related to the change of status of three nurses.

He said the protest at the 225-bed hospital was not organized by the RNABC but initiated locally.

Miller said RNABC officials are coming over from Vancouver to see what the problem is.

The nurses say the sit-in will continue until they get satisfaction on a change of status of the nurses from permanent full-time to regular part-time.

Man hurt seriously in mishap

One man was seriously hurt Saturday night when the car in which he was a passenger left the road and slammed into the ditch in the 4000-block Wilkinson Road.

John Fletcher, whose address was unavailable from police this morning, suffered fractured ribs in the mishap and is in fairly good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Lorne David Lussier, 21, of 561 Seacrest, suffered an injured leg but was not taken to hospital.

Sound of water lifesaver

The sound of running water awakened Albert Olsen before dawn today, and Esquimalt police say it might have saved him from dying in a fire.

Sgt. Jack Wright said Olsen smelled something — not fire or smoke — around 11 p.m. Sunday in his suite at 835 Selkirk.

When he was awakened by the sound of running water just before 5 a.m., he investigated and discovered there was smoke coming from the suite of Pamela Pringle on the floor below.

Olsen tried to phone in the alarm but the fire had melted the phone wires.

The call was made at an apartment across the street.

Residents of the two-storey, five-suite block were evacuated. One suite was vacant and the nurse occupant of the fifth was on night duty.

Wright said the fire started in a recessed infrared light in the Pringle bathroom, even though the light wasn't turned on.

He said the fire was contained to the ceiling of the Pringle suite and he estimated damage at about $12,000. There was considerable smoke damage to two of the suites and light smoke damage to the remaining two.

Wright said he believes the fire burned for more than five hours before the alarm was turned in.

He said what Olsen smelled the evening before was probably the fire. The resulting heat melted a solder connection of a water pipe, causing the running water Olsen heard this morning.

Duncan murder motive, suspect still sought

By DEREK SIDENIUS

The RCMP investigation into the July 3 slaying of Suzanna Seto in Duncan is grinding ahead slowly with officers still far from coming up with a suspect, let alone a motive.

Insp. Bruce Terkelsen of Victoria subdivision headquarters said on the weekend four teams of two officers have been interviewing every person who was a guest or employee at the Village Green Inn where the 29-year-old Vancouver real estate appraiser was staying the night of her murder.

Terkelsen said the teams have travelled to several points on the Island and Lower Mainland tracking down guests who left before they could be interviewed.

That part of the investigation is expected to be completed this week.

Terkelsen said investigators are chasing down all leads no matter how tenuous the connection.

For example, officers were intrigued by last week's arrest in Seattle of a man charged with kidnapping a woman and holding her for ransom in that city.

Because the woman was an oriental and a realtor, like Seto, and because the incident took place in a hotel, police wondered if the two cases might be related.

But Capt. John Leitch of Seattle police homicide said in an interview that while the suspect's whereabouts in early June haven't been completely checked out, he felt the possibility of any link is remote.

Terkelsen agreed but said fingerprints of the man have been requested for comparisons.

Terkelsen called the Seto murder one of the toughest he has ever been involved with in a career that includes 14 years as a homicide detective.

In these terms it ranks with the notorious kettle-bombing murder in Burnaby some years ago, he said.

In that case a young newly-married couple was killed when they plugged in a kettle in which two sticks of dynamite and a blasting cap had been secreted.

Four years passed before officers finally got the break they were looking for — a handwriting sample which matched that on the package the kettle had been mailed in. The sample was the 99th the crime lab had analysed.

But there is one important difference between the two cases.

In the Seto case they still have neither.
